MYSTERY PLANE SHOT DOWN . . .

From Press Reports

Saigon — U.S. and South Vietnamese commandos raided the North Vietnamese coast two weeks ago, informed sources said Tuesday. They said U.S. jet fighter planes were protecting the raid when they shot down an unidentified mystery plane June 14.

At least one commando boat was reported lost.

Reports of the raid coincided with announcement that American jet planes had pounded oil storage areas in North Viet Nam in new raids that set off spectacular fires around the big coastal city of Vinh.

Informed sources said the commando raid was carried out along the Tonkin Gulf coast near the North Vietnamese city of Thanh Hoa, about 85 miles due south of Hanoi.

The sources said the North Vietnamese caught at least two commando boats, manned by Americans and Vietnamese, on the clandestine predawn raid.

They said the communists called in "flare ships"—propeller-driven transport aircraft—which dropped flares to illuminate the area.

U.S. jets attacked the two flare ships, the sources said, knocking one out of the sky and possibly damaging the other.

What Was Told

At the time of the incident, U.S. military spokesmen announced only that American Navy jet fighters shot down one unidentified plane and chased off another after they were spotted on 7th Fleet radar screens. The rest of the story remained an official mystery.

The North Vietnamese, through Radio Hanoi, later claimed that one of the commando boats was sunk and one severely damaged.

It was known that the vessels suffered casualties, but details of the nature of the commando raid and the extent of the casualties were not revealed.

Viets Slay 99

In the south, in two widely separated engagements Tuesday, Vietnamese forces killed 99 enemy troops, captured three, and seized a large store of weapons, a government military spokesman reported Wednesday.

The spokesman said 83 Viet Cong were killed in southernmost An Xuyen province by the Vietnamese in a multibattalion sweep in a lush delta area about 150 miles south of Saigon.

U.S. Air Force and Navy pilots attacked communist targets on both sides of the border Tuesday, but the ground war was practically at a standstill for U.S. forces.

Aussie Assessment

Malcolm Fraser, Australian army minister, told a news conference Wednesday the allies are "now taking the war to the enemy" in a way not possible a year ago.

Winding up a five-day visit, Fraser said, "The Viet Cong has not demonstrated any major military initiative so far this year despite heavy and continued infiltration from North Viet Nam. The principal reason for the improved military situation lies in the heavy buildup of free world forces."

U.S. spokesmen for the first time in months Tuesday described the situation as "no contact with the enemy." The Viet Cong and their North Vietnamese allies were obviously trying to keep out of battle.

Gaud To Succeed Bell As Aid Chief

Bell is resigning effective July 31 to become vice president of the Ford Foundation in charge of international activities.

The White House said Johnson will nominate as Bell's successor William S. Gaud who has been deputy administrator of the Agency for International Development since February 1964.

Before being named by President John F. Kennedy to head the aid program Bell was budget director.

Gaud, 58, and a native of New York City, was an assistant corporation counsel there until he joined the Army during World War II. He was responsible for military assistance to China, India and Burma.

After the war, he became a special assistant to the secretary of war, then returned to the private practice of law in New York City, staying there 15 years.

He became an assistant administrator of the aid program, specializing in the Near East and South Asia in 1961, and became deputy administrator in 1964. He was educated at Yale University.

(UPI reported the White House also announced the appointment of nine new federal judges. Among them were three nominees to the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, U.S. District Judge Robert A. Ainsworth Jr. of New Orleans, lawyer John C. Godbold of Montgomery, Ala., and lawyer Irving L. Goldberg of Dallas, Tex.)

Morrison Announces LBJ Visit

Gov. Frank Morrison announced Tuesday night that President Johnson will make a brief stop at Offutt Air Force Base near Omaha Thursday at noon.

Morrison said the President, who is in the Midwest to address a Democratic fund-raising dinner in Des Moines, will discuss grain shipments on the Missouri River. Johnson and Morrison will tour grain barges carrying cargo earmarked for India.

The governor will then fly with the President to Des Moines for the evening dinner aboard Air Force One.

A Nebraskaland Days visit June 15 by the President's wife stirred up a political controversy in Nebraska. Morrison has strongly denied a news story saying the First Lady's short stay indicated that a presidential purge of Sen. Carl T. Curtis was under way.

Morrison is seeking Curtis' Senate seat in the November election.

Johnson last visited Nebraska in the fall of 1964 when he and U.N. Secretary General U Thant toured the Strategic Air Command Headquarters.

Armed Forces' Manpower Rises

Washington (AP)— U.S. military strength around the world now totals more than 3,057,360, the Defense Department said Tuesday.

This figure, as of May 31, is 53,000 higher than the April 30 strength of 3,004,333 and compares with the May 1965 level of 2,641,319.

It includes about 265,000 men stationed in Viet Nam.

The strength figures represent full-time active duty personnel in the regulars and reserves, and officer candidates, including cadets and midshipmen at the service academies.

Total manpower by service as of May 31, with the level a year ago in parentheses: Army 1,184,527 (959,319); Navy 742,134 (667,225); Marines 254,964 (188,489); Air Force 875,735 (826,286).

Bruce To Get Degree

Stoke-on-Trent, England (UPI) — U.S. ambassador David Bruce will receive an honorary degree of doctor of literature from Keele University—a year late. Bruce was to have been given the degree exactly a year ago but at the last moment was called to Washington. Princess Margaret will confer the degree.

Blast, Blaze Hit Hard-Luck Tanker Again

New York (AP)—The hard-luck British tanker Alva Cape exploded and burned a second time Tuesday at a Brooklyn anchorage, in an uncanny encore to tragedy.

She was involved less than two weeks ago in a harbor collision that claimed 33 lives.

The Coast Guard counted four men dead this time, with three others missing.

Once again it was the volatile naphtha cargo aboard the 11,252-ton British ship that exploded and sent flames flashing anew in her fire-scarred hulk as she lay in Gravesend Bay, just off shore.

"It was pretty ugly," said Battalion Fire Chief James Higgens. "It looked like a vessel that had been under fire in an invasion."

Bobby Wins Key Battle Against Tammany Hold

Washington (AP) — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy won a key battle for control of the New York state Democratic Party Tuesday night when State Supreme Court Justice Samuel J. Silverman upset the regular organization's candidate in a New York City judicial primary election.

What would normally be an obscure contest for the nomination for Manhattan surrogate attracted national attention after Kennedy joined liberal and reform elements in backing Silverman against State Supreme Court Justice Arthur G. Klein, who was backed by Tammany Hall and the regular Republican organization.

However, New York's other senator, Republican Jacob Javits, saw his man defeated by a Republican conservative for a party nomination for a U.S. House seat from Long Island.

Former Rep. Steven B. Derounian, who represented a Nassau County district in Congress until his defeat in 1964, beat William J. Casey, who was backed by Javits.

Casey had campaigned as a moderate against Derounian, a supporter of the presidential candidacy by Barry M. Goldwater in 1964.

Goldwater issued a statement through an aide in Washington in which he called Derounian's victory "good for the Republican Party and for the country."

In the nation's other primary election in South Carolina, three of four Negroes who sought to capitalize on the recent increase in the number of registered voters among Negroes were defeated by white opponents. The fourth was trailing.

TROOPS START TO LEAVE DOMINGO

The Inter-American Peace Force started its withdrawal from the Dominican Republic Tuesday with an American battalion, the first to leave. A landing ship tank, loaded with vehicles and 96 men of the 1st Battalion, 320th Artillery, sailed for Ft. Bragg, N.C., headquarters of the 82nd Airborne Division. The sprightly strains of "Carolina in the Morning" sounded; the troops shouted, "Adios, amigos!" and thus began the three-month-long dismantling of the 8,000-man force that toned down the bloody civil war.

Court Ruling Doesn't Affect Questions Asked By Policemen Prior To Arrest

By United Press International

The recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling on police interrogation of suspects does not affect the questions an officer asks before making an arrest, Nebraska Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer said Tuesday.

Meyer said an officer can question a person at the scene of a crime or elsewhere without warning him about his right to counsel and to remain silent.

However, he added, once a suspect is actually arrested, no matter how willing he is to talk, the police must repeatedly remind him that he does so at his own risk.

Meyer made these points after thoroughly reviewing the court decision and its ramifications. He said a copy of the ruling will be sent by his office to all police officials in Nebraska.

The Federal Justice Department, through U.S. Atty. David G. Bress, has drawn these procedures for police to follow:

—An arrested person must be informed — either at the scene of the arrest, during the ride to the stationhouse or inside the stationhouse — that he does not have to answer questions. If he chooses to talk anyway, he must be warned that anything he says may be used against him.

—On arrival at the stationhouse, a suspect must be informed of his right to telephone a relative, lawyer or friend.

—If a prisoner refuses to say whether or not he wants a lawyer, his silence cannot be considered a waiver of his right to counsel.

—When a suspect's lawyer reaches the stationhouse, he must be given an opportunity to confer in private with him.

Without Delay

—As has been the practice, a prisoner must be taken before a judge without unnecessary delay. However, if he has to wait a while for his lawyer to arrive, the delay between the arrest and arraignment can be considered necessary.

—If a suspect waives his right to remain silent and agrees to answer questions, he must be reminded during the interrogation that his right still exists.

—If he changes his mind during interrogation and declines to answer any more questions, the police must respect his wishes. But what statements he has already made are admissible in court.

—If a suspect makes a confession, the prosecution has the responsibility of showing in court that he made it "knowingly, intelligently and voluntarily."

Police have indicated this last guideline will cause them more headaches than most of the other new limitations.

Whether the prisoner gives them a written or an oral waiver of his right to counsel, they fear that when he gets to court he will claim that he was forced to confess or that he didn't understand what he was doing.

Police in Nebraska and elsewhere have complained that the court's ruling will severely hamper their work, especially the opportunities to obtain confessions.

Surveyor 1 Fails To Work At End Of Lunar Night

Pasadena, Calif. (AP)—America's camera on the moon, Surveyor 1, failed Tuesday night to respond to initial commands sent to reactivate it after the super-cold lunar night—two weeks at temperatures as low as 260 degrees below zero.

Said a spokesman at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which sent the commands: "This was not totally expected. We hoped it would work."

The JPL spokesman said further transmissions would be sent Wednesday and Thursday night, and, if unsuccessful, another attempt would be made July 7 when the craft's solar panels face the sun at lunar noon.

Negro Testifies To Flogging In Rights Trial Of Klansmen

Athens, Ga. (UPI) — A Negro laborer testified in the conspiracy trial of three Ku Klux Klansmen Tuesday that hooded nightriders flogged him four months before Lemuel Penn was slain on a dark highway near Athens.

The three Klansmen — Joseph Howard Sims, Cecil Myers and George Turner — are the first of six to be tried on federal civil rights charges in connection with the 1964 killing of Penn, a Washington Negro educator.

James (Preacher) Potts, who was the part-time janitor at a garage owned by another Klansman, said he was beaten with a whip "a yard and a half long" at midnight on March 7, 1964.

Potts said he drove behind the county auditorium to push away a stalled car and "about 18 hooded Klansmen came out of the basement" and surrounded him.

Potts said only one of the Klansmen spoke and he identified the voice and eyes as that of Sims.

He said Sims asked him, "Jimmy, what have you been doing with your money?"

"I ain't got no money," Potts said he replied.

"Oh, yes, you have," he said the Klansman told him. "Bend over that hood."

Potts said they beat him 18 times and them told him to drive off. Another witness, Clarke County Sheriff Tommy Huff, testified that Potts reported the beating to him and he saw "some welts" on the Negro's hip.

Two other Negroes, John Clink and Alice Fair, testified that shots were fired into their apartment by Klansmen a month before Penn's death. Clink lost his right eye in the shooting and Miss Fair also was wounded.

The testimony was evidently aimed at building up U.S. Atty. Floyd Buford's charge that the Klan had mounted an active program to intimidate Negroes in the area, and drive out-of-state Negroes off the highways.

Athens police officer Alton H. Farr testified that in June 1964, one month before Penn was slain, an elderly Negro couple from New Jersey attracted his attention on an Athens Street and asked directions to Atlanta. He testified that Sims was on the street corner wearing a pistol.

"Now I know there are ladies on the jury, Mr. Farr," prosecutor Buford said. "But tell this jury exactly what Sims said."

"You want me to say the cusswords?" Farr asked.

"Yes sir," Buford replied.

"Well, he said, 'Get your black — back up North where you come from'," Farr testified.

Farr said the Negro couple then drove hastily away.

The Klansmen's lawyer, however, claimed the defendants were "just poor old country boys" who didn't even know the meaning of interstate travel.

Buford was prosecuting under the 1870 Civil Rights Act after the state once lost a bid to convict two of the six on murder charges.

20-Year Cost $84 Million

. . . TERMED FLEXIBLE GUIDELINE

By BOB SCHREPF
Star Staff Writer

A "flexible guideline" designed to meet the transportation needs for Lincoln metropolitan area residents now and in the future was revealed to civic leaders Tuesday.

Prepared by the Kansas City, Mo., engineering consulting firm of Burgwin and Martin, with the cooperation of local, state and federal agencies, the plan envisions an $84 million major street program to be developed over a 20-year period and a circulation and access plan for the downtown street network.

Three years in the making, the $175,000 transportation-planning report was authorized and jointly financed by the state Department of Roads, the City of Lincoln, Lancaster County and the U.S. Bureau of Roads.

'Only the Basis'

The planning effort, mandatory if federal funds are to be made available to help finance local street and highway improvements, is "only the basis of a continuing 20-year study" by a technical advisory committee of the participating agencies, according to City Public Works Director Robert Obering.

Study director Herbert Johnson of Burgwin and Martin said that future changes in highway planning and major changes in land use could alter the continuing program.

He noted that in estimating the cost of the major street program—the primary purpose for the study—no attempt was made to distinguish between city, county, state or federal aid projects.

$27.88 Per Capita

The $83,650,000 recommended street program will carry a per capita cost of $27.88 each year for 20 years, Johnson said.

Average yearly cost of the program is estimated at $4,182,500. The city now spends approximately $1.5 million for new street construction, widening and resurfacing.

The study was based on travel information collected by the participating agencies in the fall and winter of 1963 and the resulting patterns were projected to the design year 1985, based on expected population distribution, economic activity and land use.

The report estimates that the 57% increase in metropolitan area residents by 1985, combined with a 125% increase in car ownership and lower car occupancy, will produce an increase of 79% vehicular travel between now and 1985.

"In order to meet the needs of present and future motorists, the system of thoroughfares shown must be developed," the report advised.

Long-Awaited

The study has been long-awaited by local officials and several needed city projects have been deferred pending its completion. Some city officials have been openly critical of the extended completion date.

Johnson took issue with the criticism Tuesday. "It took so long because of the care with which people worked to make the figures come out right," he said, adding that the air base closing and traffic rerouting had caused unanticipated delays.

"The criticism which has been eating on some of you in this audience has been unfair," he said.

Major recommendations contained in the report:

—The major street plan based on four broad types of facilities: freeway - expressway, arterial, collector and local facilities.

East Side Freeway

The program includes construction of the Northeast Radial, East Side Freeway, in the vicinity of 80th St., U.S. 77 Bypass the K St. Extension, and the Southeast Diagonal extension, all four-lane, divided facilites.

—A downtown street pattern that differs from City Traffic Engineer Robert Holsinger's proposed full one-way street system.

The study recommends that the present system be retained, adding Q (westbound and P (eastbound), and 12th (southbound) and 14th (northbound) as one-way pairs.

The proposed Northeast Diagonal would connect with P and Q, rather than on north-south streets.

Nixon Sees End Of War Before 1968

Detroit (UPI) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon Tuesday predicted the war in Viet Nam will not be an issue in the 1968 presidential election because the conflict will probably be over by that time.

Nixon, who shared a speakers platform with Michigan Gov. George Romney, dodged questions about his own political future and refused to single out any one person, including Romney, as a leading GOP presidential candidate.

Nixon, describing U.S. policy in Viet Nam as "half right and half wrong," called on President Johnson to step up bombing of military targets in North Viet Nam because "you do not bring an enemy to the conference table by telling him you are for peace."

He warned that a continuing ground war in Viet Nam would put the U.S. in a "dangerous position," but he said the conflict "should be finished" by the time the presidential elections roll around again.

Romney's brief remarks were confined to domestic issues including what Romney said was a "myth that every problem can be solved out of Washington with government and money."

The Inter-American Peace Force started its withdrawal from the Dominican Republic Tuesday with an American battalion, the first to leave. A landing ship tank, loaded with vehicles and 96 men of the 1st Battalion, 320th Artillery, sailed for Ft. Bragg, N.C., headquarters of the 82nd Airborne Division. The sprightly strains of "Carolina in the Morning" sounded; the troops shouted, "Adios, amigos!" and thus began the three-month-long dismantling of the 8,000-man force that toned down the bloody civil war.

Court Ruling Doesn't Affect Questions Asked By Policemen Prior To Arrest

By United Press International

The recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling on police interrogation of suspects does not affect the questions an officer asks before making an arrest, Nebraska Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer said Tuesday.

Meyer said an officer can question a person at the scene of a crime or elsewhere without warning him about his right to counsel and to remain silent.

However, he added, once a suspect is actually arrested, no matter how willing he is to talk, the police must repeatedly remind him that he does so at his own risk.

Meyer made these points after thoroughly reviewing the court decision and its ramifications. He said a copy of the ruling will be sent by his office to all police officials in Nebraska.

The Federal Justice Department, through U.S. Atty. David G. Bress, has drawn these procedures for police to follow:

—An arrested person must be informed — either at the scene of the arrest, during the ride to the stationhouse or inside the stationhouse — that he does not have to answer questions. If he chooses to talk anyway, he must be warned that anything he says may be used against him.

—On arrival at the stationhouse, a suspect must be informed of his right to telephone a relative, lawyer or friend.

—If a prisoner refuses to say whether or not he wants a lawyer, his silence cannot be considered a waiver of his right to counsel.

—When a suspect's lawyer reaches the stationhouse, he must be given an opportunity to confer in private with him.

Without Delay

—As has been the practice, a prisoner must be taken before a judge without unnecessary delay. However, if he has to wait a while for his lawyer to arrive, the delay between the arrest and arraignment can be considered necessary.

—If a suspect waives his right to remain silent and agrees to answer questions, he must be reminded during the interrogation that his right still exists.

—If he changes his mind during interrogation and declines to answer any more questions, the police must respect his wishes. But what statements he has already made are admissible in court.

—If a suspect makes a confession, the prosecution has the responsibility of showing in court that he made it "knowingly, intelligently and voluntarily."

Police have indicated this last guideline will cause them more headaches than most of the other new limitations.

Whether the prisoner gives them a written or an oral waiver of his right to counsel, they fear that when he gets to court he will claim that he was forced to confess or that he didn't understand what he was doing.

Police in Nebraska and elsewhere have complained that the court's ruling will severely hamper their work, especially the opportunities to obtain confessions.

Surveyor 1 Fails To Work At End Of Lunar Night

Pasadena, Calif. (AP)—America's camera on the moon, Surveyor 1, failed Tuesday night to respond to initial commands sent to reactivate it after the super-cold lunar night—two weeks at temperatures as low as 260 degrees below zero.

Said a spokesman at Jet Propulsion Laboratory, which sent the commands: "This was not totally expected. We hoped it would work."

The JPL spokesman said further transmissions would be sent Wednesday and Thursday night, and, if unsuccessful, another attempt would be made July 7 when the craft's solar panels face the sun at lunar noon.

Negro Testifies To Flogging In Rights Trial Of Klansmen

Athens, Ga. (UPI) — A Negro laborer testified in the conspiracy trial of three Ku Klux Klansmen Tuesday that hooded nightriders flogged him four months before Lemuel Penn was slain on a dark highway near Athens.

The three Klansmen — Joseph Howard Sims, Cecil Myers and George Turner — are the first of six to be tried on federal civil rights charges in connection with the 1964 killing of Penn, a Washington Negro educator.

James (Preacher) Potts, who was the part-time janitor at a garage owned by another Klansman, said he was beaten with a whip "a yard and a half long" at midnight on March 7, 1964.

Potts said he drove behind the county auditorium to push away a stalled car and "about 18 hooded Klansmen came out of the basement" and surrounded him.

Potts said only one of the Klansmen spoke and he identified the voice and eyes as that of Sims.

He said Sims asked him, "Jimmy, what have you been doing with your money?"

"I ain't got no money," Potts said he replied.

"Oh, yes, you have," he said the Klansman told him. "Bend over that hood."

Potts said they beat him 18 times and them told him to drive off. Another witness, Clarke County Sheriff Tommy Huff, testified that Potts reported the beating to him and he saw "some welts" on the Negro's hip.

Two other Negroes, John Clink and Alice Fair, testified that shots were fired into their apartment by Klansmen a month before Penn's death. Clink lost his right eye in the shooting and Miss Fair also was wounded.

The testimony was evidently aimed at building up U.S. Atty. Floyd Buford's charge that the Klan had mounted an active program to intimidate Negroes in the area, and drive out-of-state Negroes off the highways.

Athens police officer Alton H. Farr testified that in June 1964, one month before Penn was slain, an elderly Negro couple from New Jersey attracted his attention on an Athens Street and asked directions to Atlanta. He testified that Sims was on the street corner wearing a pistol.

"Now I know there are ladies on the jury, Mr. Farr," prosecutor Buford said. "But tell this jury exactly what Sims said."

"You want me to say the cusswords?" Farr asked.

"Yes sir," Buford replied.

"Well, he said, 'Get your black — back up North where you come from'," Farr testified.

Farr said the Negro couple then drove hastily away.

The Klansmen's lawyer, however, claimed the defendants were "just poor old country boys" who didn't even know the meaning of interstate travel.

Buford was prosecuting under the 1870 Civil Rights Act after the state once lost a bid to convict two of the six on murder charges.

Nixon Sees End Of War Before 1968

Detroit (UPI) — Former Vice President Richard M. Nixon Tuesday predicted the war in Viet Nam will not be an issue in the 1968 presidential election because the conflict will probably be over by that time.

Nixon, who shared a speakers platform with Michigan Gov. George Romney, dodged questions about his own political future and refused to single out any one person, including Romney, as a leading GOP presidential candidate.

Nixon, describing U.S. policy in Viet Nam as "half right and half wrong," called on President Johnson to step up bombing of military targets in North Viet Nam because "you do not bring an enemy to the conference table by telling him you are for peace."

He warned that a continuing ground war in Viet Nam would put the U.S. in a "dangerous position," but he said the conflict "should be finished" by the time the presidential elections roll around again.

Romney's brief remarks were confined to domestic issues including what Romney said was a "myth that every problem can be solved out of Washington with government and money."

. . . FAST COUP DEPOSES STUBBORN ILLIA

Buenos Aires (AP)—President Arturo Illia, ex-country doctor, was ousted early Tuesday by Argentine military leaders who sprung a swift bloodless coup during the night in a drive to keep Peronists from power.

The revolutionary military junta that took over power announced that Lt. Gen. Juan Carlos Ongania, 52, former army commander-in-chief and the nation's most prominent military man, will become the new interim president. He will be sworn in Wednesday.

The junta announced that it also dissolved all political parties and congress and dismissed members of the supreme court.

Elected in 1963, Illia had served only 32 months of his six-year term.

ONGANIA . . . president.

Illia, however, refused to resign. Even though Casa Rosada, his government house, was surrounded by tanks and troops, he sat in his chair until soldiers prodded him with rifle butts and threatened to hurl tear gas bombs into his office.

The president, refusing an escort, finally left Casa Rosada in a car. He went to the home of his brother Ricardo, who was one of his top aides.

May Seek Asylum

In Montevideo, Foreign Minister Luis Vical Zaglio said Illia was expected to seek asylum in the Uruguayan capital. Vice President Carlos Perette fled across the Plate River to Uruguay during the night.

Led By Pistarini

The military rebellion, spearheaded by Lt. Gen. Pascual A. Pistarini, army commander-in-chief and ex-Olympic horseman, was sparked by growing political power of the followers of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron. Peronists gained control of three of the country's 22 provinces in recent elections.

The country was reported calm in the wake of the coup, but there were fears that demonstrations, especially by Peronist groups, may break out later.

Two Argentine ambassadors — Norberto M. Barrenechea in Washington and Lucie S. Garcia del Solar in Moscow—resigned their posts in protest.

Pistarini announced that he was forming a ruling junta jointly with the commanders-in-chief of the navy and air force, Adm. Benigno Varela and Brig. Adolfo Alvarez.

Economics

The military leaders, fearing the growth of political power by the Peronists accused Illia of being too lenient with the Peronists and Communists as well as failure to act effectively against the nation's many economic problems.

Before the coup, Peronists figured to take control of several Argentine provinces in the March, 1967, elections, including Buenos Aires province. This the military never planned to permit.

Informed sources said the military regime plans to stay on for quite a while drastically reshaping Argentina's political spectrum before calling elections.

Washington Quick To Cut Ties With Buenos Aires

Washington (AP)—The United States, acting with unusual speed, suspended diplomatic relations with Argentina Tuesday a few hours after the elected regime of President Arturo Illia was ousted by military leaders.

In various ways, the United States had sought to discourage the coup against the wobbly Illia government.

Only a few days ago the U.S. embassy in Buenos Aires issued a statement declaring its support for constitutional governments.

Recently in Mexico City, President Johnson announced support for Illia's suggestion that presidents of the American republics meet to give impulse to the Alliance for Progress program of economic and social development. Diplomatic sources regarded Johnson's action as a friendly boost for a president in political trouble

Diplomatic Meet

The effect of the coup on a special inter-American conference of foreign ministers, scheduled to start Aug. 29 in Buenos Aires, remains to be seen.

The State Department announcement expressed regret at "the break in continuity of democratic constitutional government in Argentina," and said Washington would consult with other nations in the Organization of American States on the question of future recognition.

The department's announcement reflected established policy that on questions of maintaining relations, the decision must be based on specific situations.

Argentina's two top diplomats in Washington resigned in protest a few hours after the coup.

Doctors

They were Dr. Norberto M. Barrenechea, ambassador to the United States, and Dr. Ricardo M. Colombo, ambassador to the OAS.

U.S. officials declined to speculate what effect the coup might have on U.S. foreign aid to Argentina.

In Congress, Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said the coup is "a tragic development for Argentina and the hemisphere."

Open Housing Nearly Halted In Committee

Washington (AP) — President Johnson's controversial open housing proposal narrowly survived an attempt to scuttle it Tuesday in the House Judiciary Committee.

The vote in the sharply divided committee was reported to be 17 to 15 against killing a key section of the 1966 Civil Rights Bill that would ban racial discrimination in the sale and rental of housing.

Major amendments that would exempt some forms of housing from the law still remain to be acted on before the committee gives final approval to the measure.

However, an amendment by Rep. Jack B. Brooks, D-Tex., that would have exempted one-and two-family homes occupied by the owner was defeated, as was another Brooks proposal that would have eliminated rental units in small, owner-occupied homes.

Republicans on the committee reportedly voted solidly against Brooks' amendments, although a majority of the 11 GOP members then voted to kill the entire section.

The position of the Republicans left civil rights supporters on the committee puzzled and unwilling to make any predictions as to how the issue will be finally resolved.

Young Hot Heads Shaking Indonesia Out Of Lethargy

By T. JEFF WILLIAMS

Jakarta (AP) — The heartbeat of Indonesia today is its youth, and the hot-headed students have quickened the pulse of the nation.

They call themselves "Generation '66". They have shown incredible courage and overcome immense obstacles. They have changed the course of history in Indonesia.

School girls in white dresses and clean cut boys in open-necked shirts braved machine gun fire to topple a government.

Some died, some were wounded. All became inflamed with the passion of new nationalism. Many speak bitterly of the failures that have wracked this poverty-stricken country for the past 20 years.

Parental Confession

A shamed-faced parent admits: 'I didn't have the courage to say what I thought. It took my children to show me the way."

"Generation '66" began auspiciously in late December.

By then, the nation had suffered an attempted coup of Oct. 1, a countercoup by the army and a massive bloodbath that killed untold thousands of Communists or suspected Communists.

It was the students who cut many of the throats. Troops simply protected them.

From this outburst, organization began. The students, with support of the army and politicians looking for springboards to power behind them, welded themselves into diverse but unified organizations.

At the peak of their power, the students often demonstarted by the scores of thousands. On one unforgettable February day they toppled a cabinet that President Sukarno had appointed.

The students stopped all traffic around Sukarno's palace on that day.

Sukarno's palace guards opened fire and thousands of white shirts sprawled in fright over the green grass and dusty streets around the palace. They got to their feet again. And Sukarno bowed before them.

Behind the students at that time was the army. Military leaders turned them left or right on occasion but kept them moving straight ahead. The target: Sukarno.

Youths in Jakarta made it clear that they felt Sukarno was out of touch with Indonesia. He was an old man and belonged to a past generation.

But youths in other parts of Indonesia wanted Sukarno to remain in power. Reports that he might be pushed out brought violence to the surface in central and east Java.

In recent weeks, military leaders have been caught in their own web of student intrigue. Army leaders saw that too much pressure on Sukarno would trigger the pro-Sukarno extremists in central and east Java.

Trouble between the pro-Sukarno and anti-Sukarno students has already flared. Several have been killed.

The split appears certain to deepen. Out of it may come new violence.

Although they are a political force, the students are still youths on the prowl for adventure and excitement.

It is not uncomomn for foreign correspondents to see militant youths walk into their hotel rooms, throw their pistols on the table and demand beer.

For older Indonesian children, school is forgotten in the heat of battle. Only the small fry continue. Some students regret the loss but then argue that their role is now more important.

Militancy among the youths is one of the more striking sights in the country. Wherever one goes, even in the smallest villages, youths are on the march. They drill in soccer fields or down dirt roads with short sticks on their shoulders for rifles.

Indonesia, after stagnating under communist influence for more than six years, is on the march again. Where it is going is still unclear but the youths are forcing the pace.

Coup Against Brazzaville Congo Pro-Reds Fails

Leopoldville, the Congo (AP)—The pro-Red Chinese civilian rulers of the nearby Congo Republic (Brazzaville) apparently forestalled a Ghana-like military coup Tuesday by seizing supreme power.

Premier Ambroise Noumazalia announced over the Brazzaville radio he had taken control after an uprising by some members of the army and tribesmen. He said he was acting in the name of President Alphonse Massemba-Debat, who is in Malagsy.

Diplomatic reports indicated that some army men wanted to end one-party rule in the former French colony on Africa's West Coast.

Not Organized

But if so, the army men were not as well organized as the military leaders of Ghana, who overthrew President Kawame Nkruma last Feb. 24 while the leftist leader was in Peking for talks with Red Chinese leaders.

As far as is known, the army was not involved in disorders that swept Brazzaville Monday and early Tuesday, and the rank and file remained loyal.

Reports from Brazzaville, across the Congo River from Leopoldville, said armed patrols loyal to the civilian regime were in control of the streets and the city was quiet. Shops were open.

The army chief of staff was reported arrested by other officers.

Headquarters of the National Revolutionary Movement, the only sanctioned party, was sacked Monday by demonstrators, the premier said.

Only fragments of information filtered out of Brazzaville from radio broadcasts or through travelers who made it across the river before ferry service was suspended.

The trouble apparently started over the reduction in grade of a Capt. Gouabi to private first class. According to the reports reaching Leopoldville, Gouabi put back his officer's insignia. About 150 members of his Koyou Tribe from the northern part of the country tried to force their way into the premier's office to protest the reduction.

Coed Editor Found 'In Contempt'

Eugene, Ore. (UPI)—Coed editor Annette Buchanan, who kept her promise of secrecy to informants, Tuesday was convicted of contempt of court for refusing to identify students involved in her "scoop" involving campus narcotics.

Pert Annette cupped her head in her hands when Lane County Circuit Judge Edward Leavy announced his decision. The jurist imposed a $300 fine but withheld execution pending appeal of the case.

"I didn't expect anything," declared the 20-year-old managing editor of the University of Oregon's student newspaper when asked if she anticipated the verdict.

Later Annette said she doesn't "feel like a martyr but like a college girl."

Defense Attorney Arthur C. Johnson said he would file notice of appeal Wednesday.

Leavy's decision came after a 1½ day nonjury trial which attracted support for the university junior from Seattle throughout the nation. Oregon has no law recognizing the journalistic tradition.

"The court finds the state of Oregon was defied and defeated by the action of the respondent," intoned the jurist, who also could have imposed a six-month jail term.

Leavy's verdict came after a morning session of closing arguments in which Johnson and Dist. Atty. William Frye—a member of the newspaper staff when he attended the university — hammered at points of law and merits of Annette's case.

Subject To Rules

Frye argued that reporters were subject to the same rules as other citizens in the absence of a shield law. He said the issue of freedom of the press should be raised before the state legislature.

Miss Buchanan twice refused to disclose the names to a grand jury—the second time after being ordered to do so by Leavy. However, her attorney claimed her case should be decided on the circumstances which showed she was innocent.

Savings Arsenal Aided

Washington (AP)—The Federal Home Loan Bank Board gave the savings and loan associations a new weapon in their bitter interest rate war with commercial banks Tuesday—a five per cent dividend rate on six-month saving certificates.

This was the second time in as many days that a federal agency has stepped into the battle surrounding the certificates of deposit on which commercial banks can pay as much as 5.5% interest.

In both cases, the pressure on savings and loan associations should be eased.

Monday the Federal Reserve Board approved what it termed a moderate restraint on bank time deposits by increasing from four to five per cent the reserves which must be held against certificates.

Guild, New Paper Reach Agreement

New York (UPI)—The New York Newspaper Guild and the World Journal Tribune Inc. came to contract terms early Tuesday to end the nine-week Guild strike against the newly merged publishing company.

Formed by the largest newspaper merger in U.S. history, the World Journal Tribune was not expected to publish its first editions before July 5. Contract negotiations were continuing with two other unions, the pressmen and the mailers.

The army chief of staff was reported arrested by other officers.

Headquarters of the National Revolutionary Movement, the only sanctioned party, was sacked Monday by demonstrators, the premier said.

Only fragments of information filtered out of Brazzaville from radio broadcasts or through travelers who made it across the river before ferry service was suspended.

The trouble apparently started over the reduction in grade of a Capt. Gouabi to private first class. According to the reports reaching Leopoldville, Gouabi put back his officer's insignia. About 150 members of his Koyou Tribe from the northern part of the country tried to force their way into the premier's office to protest the reduction.

Coed Editor Found 'In Contempt'

Eugene, Ore. (UPI)—Coed editor Annette Buchanan, who kept her promise of secrecy to informants, Tuesday was convicted of contempt of court for refusing to identify students involved in her "scoop" involving campus narcotics.

Pert Annette cupped her head in her hands when Lane County Circuit Judge Edward Leavy announced his decision. The jurist imposed a $300 fine but withheld execution pending appeal of the case.

"I didn't expect anything," declared the 20-year-old managing editor of the University of Oregon's student newspaper when asked if she anticipated the verdict.

Later Annette said she doesn't "feel like a martyr but like a college girl."

Defense Attorney Arthur C. Johnson said he would file notice of appeal Wednesday.

Leavy's decision came after a 1½ day nonjury trial which attracted support for the university junior from Seattle throughout the nation. Oregon has no law recognizing the journalistic tradition.

"The court finds the state of Oregon was defied and defeated by the action of the respondent," intoned the jurist, who also could have imposed a six-month jail term.

Leavy's verdict came after a morning session of closing arguments in which Johnson and Dist. Atty. William Frye—a member of the newspaper staff when he attended the university — hammered at points of law and merits of Annette's case.

Subject To Rules

Frye argued that reporters were subject to the same rules as other citizens in the absence of a shield law. He said the issue of freedom of the press should be raised before the state legislature.

Miss Buchanan twice refused to disclose the names to a grand jury—the second time after being ordered to do so by Leavy. However, her attorney claimed her case should be decided on the circumstances which showed she was innocent.

Savings Arsenal Aided

Washington (AP)—The Federal Home Loan Bank Board gave the savings and loan associations a new weapon in their bitter interest rate war with commercial banks Tuesday—a five per cent dividend rate on six-month saving certificates.

This was the second time in as many days that a federal agency has stepped into the battle surrounding the certificates of deposit on which commercial banks can pay as much as 5.5% interest.

In both cases, the pressure on savings and loan associations should be eased.

Monday the Federal Reserve Board approved what it termed a moderate restraint on bank time deposits by increasing from four to five per cent the reserves which must be held against certificates.

Guild, New Paper Reach Agreement

New York (UPI)—The New York Newspaper Guild and the World Journal Tribune Inc. came to contract terms early Tuesday to end the nine-week Guild strike against the newly merged publishing company.

Formed by the largest newspaper merger in U.S. history, the World Journal Tribune was not expected to publish its first editions before July 5. Contract negotiations were continuing with two other unions, the pressmen and the mailers.

Plans Would Alter 146 Miles Of Road

The Lincoln Metropolitan Area Transportation Study, released Tuesday, recommends that 146.05 miles of thoroughfares be scheduled for corrective treatment during the next 20 years.

Estimated costs for these projects are expected to average $572,749 per mile, assuming a total construction and right-of-way cost of $83,650,000.

According to the study, the programs have been estimated at 1965 unit prices and have been designed to improve the major street network to serve 1985 traffic demands. The cost estimates include right-of-way acquisition, traffic signals, channelization construction and engineering.

"From a current vantage point, only generalizations can be made with regard to future construction costs. It is almost certain, however, that unit costs will continue to increase as they have in the past," the report admits.

Future Planning

The completed data will serve as a basis for future planning, and the consulting firm of Burgwin and Martin noted that "the exact location of facilities and in some case the type as well as location of interchanges will be subject later to more definitive studies."

The major street improvement program as proposed — based on the assignment of projected 1985 external and internal traffic — would include several new facilities such as the $16 million Northeast Radial, Southeast Radial extension, U.S. 77 Bypass, an East Side Freeway and the Holdrege St. Bypass.

In addition to the major street program, a street resurfacing program is recommended over the same period.

The report suggests that during the next two decades, almost 60 miles of thoroughfares be resurfaced at a total cost of $2,943,900.

During the initial five-year phase portions of 27th, 70th, A and O are recommended for improvement. Major projects during the second period would include parts of 56th, O, G, and Sheridan Blvd.

Circulation Plan

The transportation study also indicated that present and future traffic conditions in the downtown area show the need for a circulation plan, expansion and refinement of the traffic control system and additional parking facilities.

Burgwin and Martin consultant Herbert Johnson called the proposed one-way system "the most controversial part of the plan."

The one-way system as proposed by the consultants introduces P and Q into the existing system, producing a "ring road" network around the central business district or a concentric loop system consisting of two one way streets around the central core area.

The balance of the plan includes pairing 12th and 14th around 13th to produce an inner circulation loop.

"The recommended network of one-way streets is essential in order to serve the terminal and traffic distribution problems of the proposed K and L Viaduct and the Northeast Radial, according to the consultants.

The report termed "least desireable" any plan to close O St. between 10th and 15th.

". . . until such time that the O St. Viaduct is considered obsolete or until another structure can be developed possibly in the P and Q corridor area, two-way traffic should be maintained on O St. through the core area," the report recommended.

Pravda Charges Plot

Moscow (UPI) — Pravda said U.S. State Department refusal to grant visas to foreign communists is part of a campaign of "intimidation, police reprisals and terror" against the U.S. Communist Party. The foreign communists were to have attended the U.S. party congress at New York.

Plans Would Alter 146 Miles Of Road

The Lincoln Metropolitan Area Transportation Study, released Tuesday, recommends that 146.05 miles of thoroughfares be scheduled for corrective treatment during the next 20 years.

Estimated costs for these projects are expected to average $572,749 per mile, assuming a total construction and right-of-way cost of $83,650,000.

According to the study, the programs have been estimated at 1965 unit prices and have been designed to improve the major street network to serve 1985 traffic demands. The cost estimates include right-of-way acquisition, traffic signals, channelization construction and engineering.

"From a current vantage point, only generalizations can be made with regard to future construction costs. It is almost certain, however, that unit costs will continue to increase as they have in the past," the report admits.

Future Planning

The completed data will serve as a basis for future planning, and the consulting firm of Burgwin and Martin noted that "the exact location of facilities and in some case the type as well as location of interchanges will be subject later to more definitive studies."

The major street improvement program as proposed — based on the assignment of projected 1985 external and internal traffic — would include several new facilities such as the $16 million Northeast Radial, Southeast Radial extension, U.S. 77 Bypass, an East Side Freeway and the Holdrege St. Bypass.

In addition to the major street program, a street resurfacing program is recommended over the same period.

The report suggests that during the next two decades, almost 60 miles of thoroughfares be resurfaced at a total cost of $2,943,900.

During the initial five-year phase portions of 27th, 70th, A and O are recommended for improvement. Major projects during the second period would include parts of 56th, O, G, and Sheridan Blvd.

Circulation Plan

The transportation study also indicated that present and future traffic conditions in the downtown area show the need for a circulation plan, expansion and refinement of the traffic control system and additional parking facilities.

Burgwin and Martin consultant Herbert Johnson called the proposed one-way system "the most controversial part of the plan."

The one-way system as proposed by the consultants introduces P and Q into the existing system, producing a "ring road" network around the central business district or a concentric loop system consisting of two one way streets around the central core area.

The balance of the plan includes pairing 12th and 14th around 13th to produce an inner circulation loop.

"The recommended network of one-way streets is essential in order to serve the terminal and traffic distribution problems of the proposed K and L Viaduct and the Northeast Radial, according to the consultants.

The report termed "least desireable" any plan to close O St. between 10th and 15th.

". . . until such time that the O St. Viaduct is considered obsolete or until another structure can be developed possibly in the P and Q corridor area, two-way traffic should be maintained on O St. through the core area," the report recommended.

Pravda Charges Plot

Moscow (UPI) — Pravda said U.S. State Department refusal to grant visas to foreign communists is part of a campaign of "intimidation, police reprisals and terror" against the U.S. Communist Party. The foreign communists were to have attended the U.S. party congress at New York.

Deadlock On Liquor

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

We are inclined to agree with City Councilman John Comstock that the council will not come up with a liquor policy that can be sustained and "that we all will like." To date, it would seem that there has been far too great a tendency in various quarters to find a scapegoat for the political liability of liquor. The real problem is that you can't satisfy everyone and will never be able to do so.

Keeping Both Happy

In Lincoln, however, the effort is made to keep both the wets and the drys reasonably content. The objective here is to escape the political wrath of either group, to avoid loss of support at the ballot box. Thus, Lincoln has liquor flowing fairly freely but still maintains a semblance of disapproval by keeping out liquor by the drink on any public basis and by exercising tight control over package liquor operations. There is considerable deceit or hypocrisy in the case of no liquor by the drink but it is a force that can be legally sustained. With bottle clubs coming on like gangbusters, our prohibition against liquor by the drink is a laugh.

This isn't an argument one way or another on the subject, merely a statement of fact. For a few bucks a year, you can join one of dozens of bottle clubs and have all the liquor by the drink you want. The net result is not control or less drinking, but more costly drinking and inconvenience for visitors to the city.

When it comes to package liquor and beer, the question becomes as legal as it is practical. The courts have determined in a case brought by Terry Carpenter that the fact that a license is a privilege does not prevent the license holder from complaining of unconstitutional rules and regulations.

It follows, of course, that if he can so complain, he can and, when proper, will be sustained by the courts. This means that you have to treat all license holders equally. You can't have rules and regulations that give an advantage to one licensee over another. But what about the public? The public has its rights guaranteed through the ballot box. Liquor in any and all forms can be voted in through the process of initiative or referendum petitions to that effect. But the public lives or dies as one, not as individuals. You cannot have, as Lincoln would like, pockets within the city where a minority group is held exempt from practices and policies that apply throughout the rest of the city.

These pockets may have characteristics that set them apart from the rest of the city in some respects but these are not a part of the political and legal order in which they live. As a part of the city of Lincoln, they must live with the majority decisions of the city of Lincoln and the laws and court decisions that govern the city. Thus, you cannot permit a liquor or beer outlet in selected business areas and not in others. If you permit such outlets in one business area, you have to permit them in all. To do otherwise is to run up against charges of unconstitutionality on the part of license holders who are denied the privileges that are afforded to other license holders. This is what the city has tried to do and failed.

What Comstock is saying, it seems, is that you can't have liquor, even in package form, and make everyone happy. Those opposed to liquor are opposed to it in package form and don't want the product sold in the areas in which they work or live. This is understandable but not legally enforceable.

It doesn't mean that the city has no control at all over liquor operations. It can recommend to the State Liquor Control Commission and the commission will make every effort to cooperate with local governing bodies. The history of its operations clearly demonstrates this as it has, over the years, been in substantial agreement with local governing bodies.

Uniformity In Control

But where the city wants to control, it must control with uniformity and equity. When it applies a ruling or policy, it must apply throughout the industry, not in favor of certain license holders and against the interest of others. It is the responsibility of the state commission to see to it that the cities and counties do this. If the commission fails, the courts will step in and, again, history shows this is exactly what happens. In trying to control license locations, Lincoln is trying to protect the interest of sections of the city that want no license outlets. Lincoln city government is trying to keep both the wets and drys happy.

How this can be done without running afoul of the law is a trick we haven't figured out. The City Council is searching for just such a solution and will be quite a Solomon if it comes up with one. There certainly are moral issues in any liquor question but to dwell exclusively on those issues at the sacrifice of legal requirements is to invite a degree of misery of benefit to none.

Standards With Reason

City officials at all levels appear to be taking an intelligent approach to the proposal for a new minimum standards housing ordinance for Lincoln. Current attitudes indicate a generally favorable response to adoption of a new code, aimed primarily at elimination of the grandfather clause now a part of the current code.

Thus, the minimum standards housing ordinance would apply to all dwellings, regardless of when they were constructed. Obviously, this would affect a fair number of dwelling units in the city. But the idea of a wholesale condemnation of one home after another is ridiculous.

For one thing, the council will be taking a careful look at the standards established. Window, ventilation and square footage requirements, for instance, may well be made more lenient than those contained in so-called model codes. The model from which Lincoln is working, for instance, is too restrictive in these areas.

Then, Building Inspection Superintendent Charles Seale, under whom enforcement would fall, speaks of enforcement with temperance and judgment. He speaks of degree of compliance with the ordinance and the cumulative threat of violations to the general public welfare.

Thus, the objective at no point along the line is persecution of anyone or the massive uprooting of individuals and families. Officials have spoken of public reliance upon the government. There are those who would not buy this under any circumstances but, hopefully, they are a small minority. Without public confidence in the government, no program could succeed and the housing code is no exception.

Rent Supplements

President Johnson's program of rent supplements has found little support in Nebraska. Least support of all might well be found in Omaha, a headquarters for conservative thinking on most all public projects.

Congress, however, has now appropriated funds for the program it approved last year and $600,000 has been set aside by the administration for the first rent supplement programs. In that first list, one finds Omaha, Neb., where the Association for the Blind will build housing on land acquired through its White Cane Drive.

No doubt the program will continue to be blasted by conservative voices in Nebraska that refuse ever to look at anything but their own preconceived notions of what government ought to be. They would rather ignore the reports of need that are heard from many people throughout all parts of the nation.

The rent supplement program will give aid to recipient families according to the difference between 25 percent of the occupant's income and the fair market rental charge for his dwelling. Thus, if fair market rentals and actual rentals are the same, supplement recipients would be limited in rent payments to 25 percent of their income.

Thus, the program is not such a substantial subsidy as it might sound. Twenty-five percent of income is a fairly standard economic principle for sound housing costs, not a give-away. The program holds no guarantees, but hopefully, will raise through artificial means the standard of living for lower income people who will then be encouraged to find the means of making this standard permanent through their own efforts.

Blessings Of Nature

For changing frowns to smiles, you can't beat a good summer rain. Even when it pours out a little too much here and there or blows to excess, it is an event widely welcomed. It was just a few weeks ago that the threat of drought hung ominously over the head of Nebraska agriculture. Today, farmers are rejoicing over the prospect of excellent crop yields and fattening cattle.

In the cities, trees are a deep green and heavy with foliage. Lawns are so lush that neighborhoods have taken on the appearance of one country club after another. Garden plots, of course, are thriving.

We say that people complain about the weather but that nobody ever does anything about it. Nobody among us mortals can do anything about it but the case is settled in a higher court than ours and the actions taken are amazingly benevolent.

One wonders what our plight would be if we received only what we were entitled to or what we merited. What we seem to get more often than not is what we need and that has a lot of advantages.

Not only does it leave us safe against our own shortcomings, but it guards us against bad judgment and our inability to get along at all times. Imagine the fighting that would ensue if men determined for themselves when and where it was to rain and when the sun was to shine.

We can not only smile at the blessings of recent moisture but we can rejoice, at least on some scores, that we haven't more to say about such things than we do.

"Can't Hear A Thing—Wait Till We Finish Sawing Down These Trees"

Petroleum Institute Finances Research

WASHINGTON—The Dodd investigation is not the only place where conflicts of interest have been revealed recently. During the Senate air pollution investigation, Sen. Ed Muskie, D-Me., revealed that the American Petroleum Institute has put up $480,000 for the U.S. Bureau of Mines to test the lead in gasoline.

The disclosure was made by Dr. Walter Hibbard, director of the Bureau of Mines.

"A public agency doing research is financed in part by private industry?" inquired Sen. Muskie, obviously surprised.

"That is right," affirmed Dr. Hibbard.

Further questioning by Chairman Muskie disclosed "this kind of activity" in the Bureau of Mines goes back to 1923 when the bureau entered into an agreement with General Motors and Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, in cooperation with the U.S. Public Health Service, to make experimental studies.

Dr. Hibbard explained that "we have found this . . . very effective in promoting the wide use of our resources."

"And as a way of supplementing your own financial resources," added Sen. Muskie. He had just learned that the Bureau of Mines had never asked Congress for these funds.

"Is this a deliberate choice as between the budget financing and industry financing of these research projects?" asked Muskie.

"It is a very effective promoter of technology transfer," replied Dr. Hibbard.

Hibbard also told the senators that the Bureau of Mines has about 40 of these agreements with industry.

Withholding Truth Charge Against LBJ

WASHINGTON — Nineteen House Republicans including the leadership and ranking Republicans of five House committees, have opened an attack on President Johnson's "credibility." He is, they charge, creating a "crisis of confidence."

They can speak plainer than that. What they are trying to convey is that the president is not telling the truth about Viet Nam and other issues. One of the group describes his involvement in a "curious contract" awarded a Texas firm.

These are grave charges, but their Madison Avenue wrappings taint them with the flavor of mere campaign oratory. Sen. Everett Dirksen is noticeably wary of them, and so is most of the minority he leads.

What the attack represents in reality is widespread Republican frustration over the party's inability to capitalize on the Viet Nam issue. The war permeates the whole midterm campaign, and by every index the voters are unhappy and confused by it. Democrats concede this and have all but adopted the old adage, "Save himself who can," as their guide.

Republicans are not alone divided, as are Democrats. Even those ready to rise above principle and seek the pragmatic course of pleasing the constituents report difficulty. They wail that they simply cannot find out what the voters really want.

In one upstate New York district, the Republican nominee, trying to salvage a marginal district lost in the Goldwater disaster, turned to the poll-takers.

The pollsters assured him everybody was dissatisfied with the war and the President's explanations. He was told that it was possible to attack Johnson personally in any bar, but nobody offered to fight. The candidate began a vigorous anti-Viet Nam, anti-Johnson campaign. A few weeks later the pollsters rechecked. They informed the candidates that people felt the same way but that he was losing ground. Now he is letting the issue work by itself.

The attempt, started here to shift the attack to Johnson personally, is probably of doubtful merit as a political tactic. He is not on the ticket, nor is their back-door approach obedient to the warning: "If you strike at a king, you must kill him."

As some Democrats continue to demonstrate, there is a case to be made that the President is often less than candid, apparently determined upon the old legislative strategy of holding his real objectives back until he is sure of success. Few members of Congress take what the White House says at face value.

A rather obscure senator, Republican James B. Pearson of Kansas, has made one of the best presentations of how and why doubts build in Congress. He warned that public trust was essentially fragile, with erosion occurring slowly and "after a long series of mismatched words and deeds, of unclear goals and confusing and contradictory methods." He then documented his case soberly.

The result, he concluded, may well be that by its conduct of its policy, the administration will forfeit the support of its intentions and its deserved goals.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Legality Of Wire-Tapping

WASHINGTON—How narrowly wholesale tragedy was averted in Mississippi can never be known with precision. Between the violent bigotry of the whites and the long pent-up frustration of the Negroes, the lines between sullen order and outright slaughter was paper thin.

The man who would have borne the blame for disaster, Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach, kept an anxious watch over the weekend until the big rally at Jackson, the state capital, was ended. Critics, and not alone on the left of the civil rights movement, increasingly complained that in Mississippi Katzenbach fails to use the tools provided in the Federal Voting Rights Act of 1965 to register Negro voters.

The attorney general confronts in Mississippi a sovereign power in Sen. James Eastland. That power extends far beyond his fiefdom of Sunflower County to the Senate of the United States and his chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee with obstruction if not outright veto over the appointments of federal judges and other aspects of the judicial and law-enforcement machinery.

Katzenbach can, therefore, reply that in the face of such a sovereign power, he has no choice but to proceed with all deliberate caution lest open warfare with Eastland be the result. The question is how far his writ runs. And that same question has arisen in even more embarrassing form in another area.

When Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall went before the Supreme Court, acting on the instructions of the attorney general, to confess that a listening device had been placed in the hotel suite of Fred B. Black Jr., convicted of income tax evasion, he opened the door a crack into a dark malodorous room. In this extraordinary confession, Marshall said that the device was planted without authority from the attorney general. Meanwhile, Richard Harwood, in a series of articles in the Washington Post, has revealed more than anyone else the cloud over a case far more important than that of Black is still impenetrable.

If Black can get his conviction reversed because of the illicit wire tap, then Robert G. (Bobby) Baker, charged with theft and evasion, stands a chance of getting off on the same ground. Baker's attorneys allege "massive wire tapping" was the basis for the indictment. The Department of Justice has now entered a denial, stating that all the evidence was "legally obtained." But it will not be until the solicitor general replies to the Supreme Court's request for a fuller explanation that the status of wire-tapping will be clarified. If the Baker case goes to trial, it is hardly necessary to add, his clever attorneys will make sure that the highest levels of government are involved in the disclosures.

Under the obscure laws restricting both wire tapping of electronic communications and eavesdropping through planted bugs an area of byzantine intrigue has seen every shred of privacy stripped away. Associates of one of the most prominent civil rights leaders are convinced that his hotel room in Washington was bugged by the FBI on the evening of the great march on the Lincoln Memorial in August, 1963.

No one involved will admit to this. Newsmen, however, were told that they could hear the tapes and FBI agents have talked about what they revealed. Officials at the Justice Department say merely that their impression was that the tapes came from the regional office of the civil rights leader with the listening device planted by local authorities. There is good reason to believe, however, that the disclosures were intended to intimidate the individual involved.

Katzenbach has declined to talk about wire tapping or bugging pending a hearing in August on the Baker case. Spokesmen at the Justice Department will say only that neither electronic eavesdropping, which is less restricted legally, nor wire tapping of telephones has gone on for the past year. The era of wholesale tapping began in 1961 in Las Vegas, Nevada, when a series of taps were placed on the phones in big-time gamblers offices and hotel rooms. Baker was at least indirectly involved in the Las Vegas investigation.

Here again where authority lies is the plaguing issue for the attorney general. The late Robert H. Jackson, after he had left the attorney general's office and gone to the Supreme Court, once said that no attorney general in his memory had exercised control over J. Edgar Hoover, the director of the FBI. This private admission bore out the impression that, solidly entrenched with Congress and a master of the art of public appeal, Hoover was a law unto himself.

If Katzenbach has put an end to eavesdropping and wire tapping, except in cases involving national security, that should be put on the public record. A lot more light is needed in that dark, malodorous room.

Nebraska Scene

Ansley, Neb.

I rode to Broken Bow recently, and was very surprised to see how slow all the crops are in general. Usually the corn crop is laid-by by the Fourth of July. It has been much too dry, cold and in between very hot for vegetation to grow.

Word from a relative in Wisconsin says that crops there and elsewhere are also behind schedule.

Haystacks are not made very often any more. Hay is baled and piled up. The sleek cattle were eating and gaining in size. We saw three riding horses in a pasture.

Just outside of Broken Bow, the rolling distant hills look like the mountains in Colorado. They seem so close, yet are miles away. The scenery was beautiful, with green velvet below, the blue, blue sky, and the "mountains" in the background.

Nebraska has many lovely, natural God-made sights to see.

Two Brave Men

Lincoln, Neb.

In the June 22 Lincoln Star, a letter writer denounced Senator Curtis and Senator Hurska for voting against the so-called "Truth in Packaging Bill." The writer must be completely ignorant about the real provisions of this bill, written under such a misleading title.

This bill is an insult to the intelligence of the American buying public. Its very concept is based on the assumption that the American shopper does not have the intelligence to figure the contents of a package, if the weight is stated in pounds and ounces. We have long had laws that the correct weight and ingredients must be truthfully stated on the wrapper of a package. It seems to me this should be truth enough.

But now comes Senator Phillip Hart of Michigan to introduce this mislabeled bill. It seems he introduced this bill as much to aid the cherry growers of Michigan as he did to aid the consumer. He called upon the Food and Drug Administration to compel food manufacturers to put more cherries in cherry pies. He even brought along two cherry pies which he opened and proceeded to prove to the senators that there were not as many cherries in the 29-cent cherry pie as in the 49-cent pie. I wonder who would be stupid enough to think there would be?

Under this bill, as passed by the Senate, the federal government will be able to issue and enforce standard definitions of "small," medium" and "large." It will also be able to regulate the definition of "serving." Who doesn't know the number of servings would depend on the size of the serving the consumer decided to serve?

This bill also provides that the federal government could ban certain sized packages that had long enjoyed consumer acceptance. This could result only in higher costs to the consumer, if the producer is forced to change packaging equipment to comply. Some may be driven out of business because the cost of complying is too great.

All of these provisions have to do with more government regulation of business and nothing to do with "truth in packaging." A vast new bureau will have to be set up to police all the packaging of all the producers. This puts more people on the government payroll and increases an already deficit budget.

The people of Nebraska should be very proud of Senator Curtis and Senator Hruska for voting against such a misrepresented and ill-conceived bill. We have two courageous senators who will vote for the best interests of the people of Nebraska, even at the risk of having such false accusations leveled against them.

Seeking Truth

Lincoln, Neb.

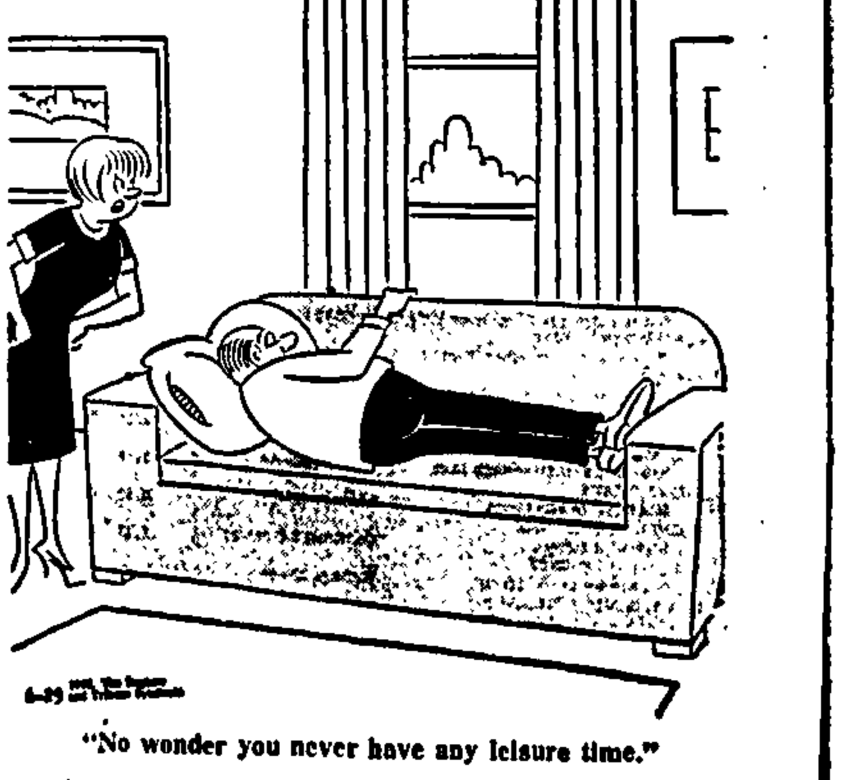
My congratulations to Mr. Pat Munroe for his article in the Sunday paper about campaigning of LBJ against certain members of the Senate. One has only to read an article published in the Reader's Digest earlier this year about the difficulties encountered by those trying to investigate the Bobby Baker case, especially Senator Williams of Delaware. Some of the witnesses for Senator Williams' case were threatened into keeping their mouths closed or forced into exile outside of the U.S. Senator Williams himself was very intensively investigated on income taxes for previous years and various untrue rumors were started questioning his integrity.

I was not aware of Senator Curtis's stand with Senator Williams on this matter, but my hat is off to anyone who has the nerve to stand up and speak out against things, and that includes Mr. Munroe.

I can see no need for an apology for stating the truth and what seems to be evident. I think it's about time the voters are being informed about some of these facts. The truth always hurts some but in the long-run, we all should know whom it will benefit.

OWEN KROESE

OFF THE RECORD By Ed. Reed



"No wonder you never have any leisure time."

Deadlock On Liquor

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

We are inclined to agree with City Councilman John Comstock that the council will not come up with a liquor policy that can be sustained and "that we all will like." To date, it would seem that there has been far too great a tendency in various quarters to find a scapegoat for the political liability of liquor. The real problem is that you can't satisfy everyone and will never be able to do so.

Keeping Both Happy

In Lincoln, however, the effort is made to keep both the wets and the drys reasonably content. The objective here is to escape the political wrath of either group, to avoid loss of support at the ballot box. Thus, Lincoln has liquor flowing fairly freely but still maintains a semblance of disapproval by keeping out liquor by the drink on any public basis and by exercising tight control over package liquor operations. There is considerable deceit or hypocrisy in the case of no liquor by the drink but it is a force that can be legally sustained. With bottle clubs coming on like gangbusters, our prohibition against liquor by the drink is a laugh.

This isn't an argument one way or another on the subject, merely a statement of fact. For a few bucks a year, you can join one of dozens of bottle clubs and have all the liquor by the drink you want. The net result is not control or less drinking, but more costly drinking and inconvenience for visitors to the city.

When it comes to package liquor and beer, the question becomes as legal as it is practical. The courts have determined in a case brought by Terry Carpenter that the fact that a license is a privilege does not prevent the license holder from complaining of unconstitutional rules and regulations.

It follows, of course, that if he can so complain, he can and, when proper, will be sustained by the courts. This means that you have to treat all license holders equally. You can't have rules and regulations that give an advantage to one licensee over another. But what about the public? The public has its rights guaranteed through the ballot box. Liquor in any and all forms can be voted in through the process of initiative or referendum petitions to that effect. But the public lives or dies as one, not as individuals. You cannot have, as Lincoln would like, pockets within the city where a minority group is held exempt from practices and policies that apply throughout the rest of the city.

These pockets may have characteristics that set them apart from the rest of the city in some respects but these are not a part of the political and legal order in which they live. As a part of the city of Lincoln, they must live with the majority decisions of the city of Lincoln and the laws and court decisions that govern the city. Thus, you cannot permit a liquor or beer outlet in selected business areas and not in others. If you permit such outlets in one business area, you have to permit them in all. To do otherwise is to run up against charges of unconstitutionality on the part of license holders who are denied the privileges that are afforded to other license holders. This is what the city has tried to do and failed.

What Comstock is saying, it seems, is that you can't have liquor, even in package form, and make everyone happy. Those opposed to liquor are opposed to it in package form and don't want the product sold in the areas in which they work or live. This is understandable but not legally enforceable.

It doesn't mean that the city has no control at all over liquor operations. It can recommend to the State Liquor Control Commission and the commission will make every effort to cooperate with local governing bodies. The history of its operations clearly demonstrates this as it has, over the years, been in substantial agreement with local governing bodies.

But where the city wants to control, it must control with uniformity and equity.

Uniformity In Control

When it applies a ruling or policy, it must apply throughout the industry, not in favor of certain license holders and against the interest of others. It is the responsibility of the state commission to see to it that the cities and counties do this. If the commission fails, the courts will step in and, again, history shows this is exactly what happens. In trying to control license locations, Lincoln is trying to protect the interest of sections of the city that want no license outlets. Lincoln city government is trying to keep both the wets and drys happy.

How this can be done without running afoul of the law is a trick we haven't figured out. The City Council is searching for just such a solution and will be quite a Solomon if it comes up with one. Withholding Truth Charge Against LBJ

WASHINGTON — Nineteen House Republicans including the leadership and ranking Republicans of five House committees, have opened an attack on President Johnson's "credibility." He is, they charge, creating a "crisis of confidence."

They can speak plainer than that. What they are trying to convey is that the president is not telling the truth about Viet Nam and other issues. One of the group describes his involvement in a "curious contract" awarded a Texas firm.

These are grave charges, but their Madison Avenue wrappings taint them with the flavor of mere campaign oratory. Sen. Everett Dirksen is noticeably wary of them, and so is most of the minority he leads.

What the attack represents in reality is widespread Republican frustration over the party's inability to capitalize on the Viet Nam issue. The war permeates the whole midterm campaign, and by every index the voters are unhappy and confused by it. Democrats concede this and have all but adopted the old adage, "Save himself who can," as their guide.

Republicans are not alone divided, as are Democrats. Even those ready to rise above principle and seek the pragmatic course of pleasing the constituents report difficulty. They wail that they simply cannot find out what the voters really want.

In one upstate New York district, the Republican nominee, trying to salvage a marginal district lost in the Goldwater disaster, turned to the poll-takers.

The pollsters assured him everybody was dissatisfied with the war and the President's explanations. He was told that it was possible to attack Johnson personally in any bar, but nobody offered to fight. The candidate began a vigorous anti-Viet Nam, anti-Johnson campaign. A few weeks later the pollsters rechecked. They informed the candidates that people felt the same way but that he was losing ground. Now he is letting the issue work by itself.

The attempt, started here to shift the attack to Johnson personally, is probably of doubtful merit as a political tactic. He is not on the ticket, nor is their back-door approach obedient to the warning: "If you strike at a king, you must kill him."

As some Democrats continue to demonstrate, there is a case to be made that the President is often less than candid, apparently determined upon the old legislative strategy of holding his real objectives back until he is sure of success. Few members of Congress take what the White House says at face value.

A rather obscure senator, Republican James B. Pearson of Kansas, has made one of the best presentations of how and why doubts build in Congress. He warned that public trust was essentially fragile, with erosion occurring slowly and "after a long series of mismatched words and deeds, of unclear goals and confusing and contradictory methods." He then documented his case soberly.

The result, he concluded, may well be that by its conduct of its policy, the administration will forfeit the support of its intentions and its deserved goals.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Legality Of Wire-Tapping

WASHINGTON—How narrowly wholesale tragedy was averted in Mississippi can never be known with precision. Between the violent bigotry of the whites and the long pent-up frustration of the Negroes, the lines between sullen order and outright slaughter was paper thin.

The man who would have borne the blame for disaster, Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach, kept an anxious watch over the weekend until the big rally at Jackson, the state capital, was ended. Critics, and not alone on the left of the civil rights movement, increasingly complained that in Mississippi Katzenbach fails to use the tools provided in the Federal Voting Rights Act of 1965 to register Negro voters.

The attorney general confronts in Mississippi a sovereign power in Sen. James Eastland. That power extends far beyond his fiefdom of Sunflower County to the Senate of the United States and his chairmanship of the Judiciary Committee with obstruction if not outright veto over the appointments of federal judges and other aspects of the judicial and law-enforcement machinery.

Katzenbach can, therefore, reply that in the face of such a sovereign power, he has no choice but to proceed with all deliberate caution lest open warfare with Eastland be the result. The question is how far his writ runs. And that same question has arisen in even more embarrassing form in another area.

When Solicitor General Thurgood Marshall went before the Supreme Court, acting on the instructions of the attorney general, to confess that a listening device had been placed in the hotel suite of Fred B. Black Jr., convicted of income tax evasion, he opened the door a crack into a dark malodorous room. In this extraordinary confession, Marshall said that the device was planted without authority from the attorney general. Meanwhile, Richard Harwood, in a series of articles in the Washington Post, has revealed more than anyone else the cloud over a case far more important than that of Black is still impenetrable.

If Black can get his conviction reversed because of the illicit wire tap, then Robert G. (Bobby) Baker, charged with theft and evasion, stands a chance of getting off on the same ground. Baker's attorneys allege "massive wire tapping" was the basis for the indictment. The Department of Justice has now entered a denial, stating that all the evidence was "legally obtained." But it will not be until the solicitor general replies to the Supreme Court's request for a fuller explanation that the status of wire-tapping will be clarified. If the Baker case goes to trial, it is hardly necessary to add, his clever attorneys will make sure that the highest levels of government are involved in the disclosures.

Under the obscure laws restricting both wire tapping of electronic communications and eavesdropping through planted bugs an area of byzantine intrigue has seen every shred of privacy stripped away. Associates of one of the most prominent civil rights leaders are convinced that his hotel room in Washington was bugged by the FBI on the evening of the great march on the Lincoln Memorial in August, 1963.

No one involved will admit to this. Newsmen, however, were told that they could hear the tapes and FBI agents have talked about what they revealed. Officials at the Justice Department say merely that their impression was that the tapes came from the regional office of the civil rights leader with the listening device planted by local authorities. There is good reason to believe, however, that the disclosures were intended to intimidate the individual involved.

Katzenbach has declined to talk about wire tapping or bugging pending a hearing in August on the Baker case. Spokesmen at the Justice Department will say only that neither electronic eavesdropping, which is less restricted legally, nor wire tapping of telephones has gone on for the past year. The era of wholesale tapping began in 1961 in Las Vegas, Nevada, when a series of taps were placed on the phones in big-time gamblers offices and hotel rooms. Baker was at least indirectly involved in the Las Vegas investigation.

Here again where authority lies is the plaguing issue for the attorney general. The late Robert H. Jackson, after he had left the attorney general's office and gone to the Supreme Court, once said that no attorney general in his memory had exercised control over J. Edgar Hoover, the director of the FBI. This private admission bore out the impression that, solidly entrenched with Congress and a master of the art of public appeal, Hoover was a law unto himself.

If Katzenbach has put an end to eavesdropping and wire tapping, except in cases involving national security, that should be put on the public record. A lot more light is needed in that dark, malodorous room.

Nebraska Scene

Ansley, Neb.

I rode to Broken Bow recently, and was very surprised to see how slow all the crops are in general. Usually the corn crop is laid-by by the Fourth of July. It has been much too dry, cold and in between very hot for vegetation to grow.

Word from a relative in Wisconsin says that crops there and elsewhere are also behind schedule.

Haystacks are not made very often any more. Hay is baled and piled up. The sleek cattle were eating and gaining in size. We saw three riding horses in a pasture.

Just outside of Broken Bow, the rolling distant hills look like the mountains in Colorado. They seem so close, yet are miles away. The scenery was beautiful, with green velvet below, the blue, blue sky, and the "mountains" in the background.

Nebraska has many lovely, natural God-made sights to see.

Two Brave Men

Lincoln, Neb.

In the June 22 Lincoln Star, a letter writer denounced Senator Curtis and Senator Hurska for voting against the so-called "Truth in Packaging Bill." The writer must be completely ignorant about the real provisions of this bill, written under such a misleading title.

This bill is an insult to the intelligence of the American buying public. Its very concept is based on the assumption that the American shopper does not have the intelligence to figure the contents of a package, if the weight is stated in pounds and ounces. We have long had laws that the correct weight and ingredients must be truthfully stated on the wrapper of a package. It seems to me this should be truth enough.

But now comes Senator Phillip Hart of Michigan to introduce this mislabeled bill. It seems he introduced this bill as much to aid the cherry growers of Michigan as he did to aid the consumer. He called upon the Food and Drug Administration to compel food manufacturers to put more cherries in cherry pies. He even brought along two cherry pies which he opened and proceeded to prove to the senators that there were not as many cherries in the 29-cent cherry pie as in the 49-cent pie. I wonder who would be stupid enough to think there would be?

Under this bill, as passed by the Senate, the federal government will be able to issue and enforce standard definitions of "small," medium" and "large." It will also be able to regulate the definition of "serving." Who doesn't know the number of servings would depend on the size of the serving the consumer decided to serve?

This bill also provides that the federal government could ban certain sized packages that had long enjoyed consumer acceptance. This could result only in higher costs to the consumer, if the producer is forced to change packaging equipment to comply. Some may be driven out of business because the cost of complying is too great.

All of these provisions have to do with more government regulation of business and nothing to do with "truth in packaging." A vast new bureau will have to be set up to police all the packaging of all the producers. This puts more people on the government payroll and increases an already deficit budget.

The people of Nebraska should be very proud of Senator Curtis and Senator Hruska for voting against such a misrepresented and ill-conceived bill. We have two courageous senators who will vote for the best interests of the people of Nebraska, even at the risk of having such false accusations leveled against them.

Seeking Truth

Lincoln, Neb.

My congratulations to Mr. Pat Munroe for his article in the Sunday paper about campaigning of LBJ against certain members of the Senate. One has only to read an article published in the Reader's Digest earlier this year about the difficulties encountered by those trying to investigate the Bobby Baker case, especially Senator Williams of Delaware. Some of the witnesses for Senator Williams' case were threatened into keeping their mouths closed or forced into exile outside of the U.S. Senator Williams himself was very intensively investigated on income taxes for previous years and various untrue rumors were started questioning his integrity.

I was not aware of Senator Curtis's stand with Senator Williams on this matter, but my hat is off to anyone who has the nerve to stand up and speak out against things, and that includes Mr. Munroe.

I can see no need for an apology for stating the truth and what seems to be evident. I think it's about time the voters are being informed about some of these facts. The truth always hurts some but in the long-run, we all should know whom it will benefit.

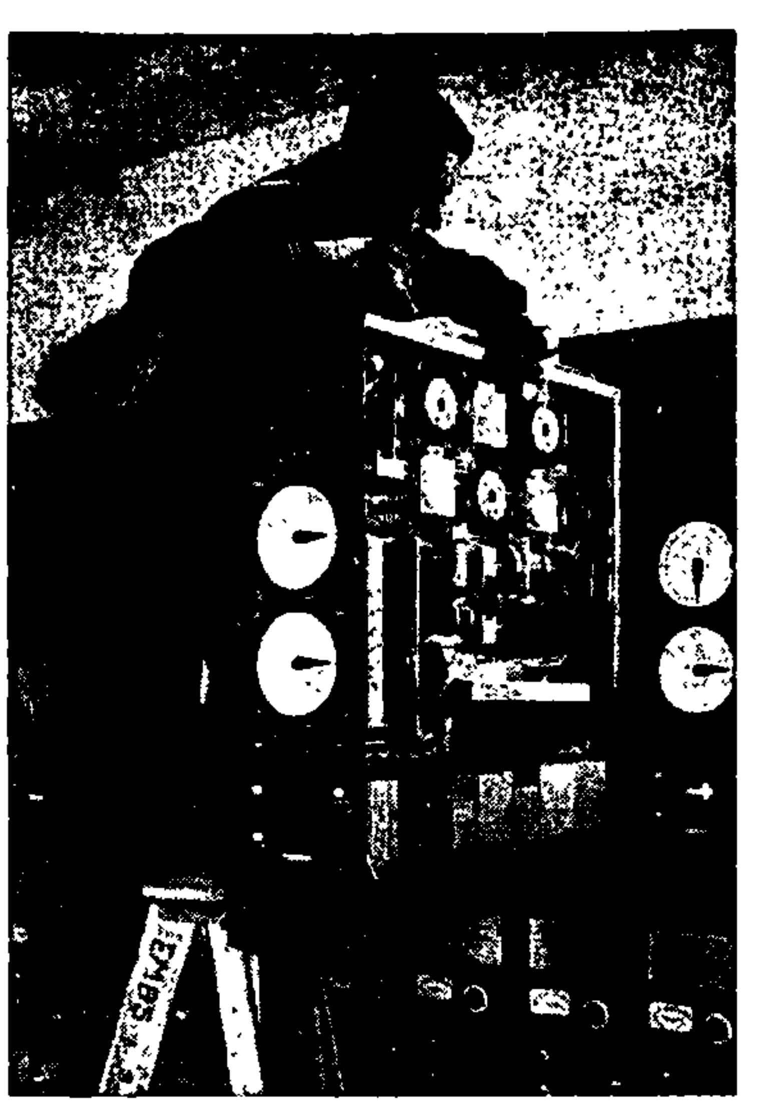
G.I. GUIDE:

Some Men Decide To Make Military Service Their Career

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the seventh article in a series on the armed forces.)

BY ELTON FAY



NEW SKILLS . . . may be useful anytime.

Do you think you might want to make the military a career, perhaps try after a while for an officer's commission?

Some do. Many don't.

The services are hot on reenlistments, particularly of those with technical skills, and have two programs to encourage it.

One is the standard reenlistment bonus, for those above the first or second grades.

The standard reenlistment program provides a bonus equal to one month of pay for each previously served year of enlistment, with a top of $2,000.

Bonus

In addition, the services have something called the "variable reenlistment bonus," aimed at providing inducement for technicians (those with "critical military skills") to stay in service. To qualify for this bonus one must have two years of active duty, not counting active duty for training purposes, be grade E-3 or above and have a military occupation specialty (MOS). The definition of critical skills change as new equipment or weapons come into use.

The combination of the standard and variable bonuses run into tidy sums as reenlistments are repeated. You have seen photographs of an old time sergeant or navy chief trundling a wheelbarrow of money. While reenlistment bonuses may be hundreds or even thousands of dollars, wheelbarrow loads are rare and usually the product of some publicity officer caper.

Military pay goes up steadily with promotion in rank and length of service. A master sergeant or senior chief petty officer who entered service about 16 years ago at a starting pay of less than $90 a month draws a base pay of more than $400 now.

Or, in the commissioned officer ranks, take a lieutenant colonel or navy commander as an example: He started out as a second lieutenant or ensign 16 years ago, with a base pay of less than $300. His base pay now is about $700.

Not Big

Military pay isn't big measured against jobs of similar nature in civilian life.

That lieutenant colonel or commander is an example. Assuming he is an Air Force, Navy or Marine pilot drawing about $700 per month, with other benefits, he could get start-off pay of about $1,000 as an airline pilot and, with seniority accumulating, climb far above that income level.

There are several possible paths to becoming a commissioned officer in the services, including appointment to the three major academies, through the Reserve Officers Training Corps programs of the services, through Officer Candidate Schools or, in limited instances, by direct commissions from civilian life.

The four service academies —the Army's West Point, the Navy's Annapolis (which also provides officers for the Marine corps, the Air Force's Colorado Springs and the Coast Guard's New London, academy all have four-year programs.

The entrance age bracket for each is the same — 17 to 22. They are the military counterparts of a civilian college or university. The student body of each, with some exceptions, are men with no prior military service. Entrance is almost entirely by congressional appointment, with rigid academic and physical requirements, except for the Coast Guard academy where entrance is by nationwide competitive examination.

May Compete

Enlisted men in the regular or reserve forces may compete for a comparatively limited number of presidential nominations to West Point, Annapolis or Colorado Springs.

Graduates of the four academies are commissioned as second lieutenants or ensigns.

Like those of the service academies, students in the Reserve Officer Training Corps programs at schools, colleges and universities are no-prior-service men. The idea is that along with your civilian schooling you receive enough military training and military subjects to qualify you for an officer's commission, either in the regular establishment or as a reserve officer.

Two of the services, the Army and Air Force, set ages for entrance into ROTC type units low enough to include youngsters entering high school. The age brackets for these programs of both services are 14-24. The naval ROTC age bracket is 17 to 21. The Coast Guard does not use an ROTC program, relying on its Officer Candidate School.

OCS Students

The student body of the Officer Candidate Schools (OCS) maintained by the services come from the two sources. One is from the enlisted or warrant officer ranks of the regular and reserve forces—men whose work and showing in aptitude tests mark them as likely officer material. The other source are men who are college graduates and thus, if meeting other standards such as physical fitness and mental aptitude, may qualify for direct enlistment in OCS. The requirements for college degrees and the length of training at OCS schools varies somewhat with the individual services.

Entrance age brackets for the OCS differs with services. The Army bracket is 18½ to 28; the Marines 20 to 27 (but with 26 years the top for aviation men); the Air Force 20½ to 29½; the Coast Guard 21 to 26.

Direct appointments to officer commissions occur in instances where special professional or technical skills are needed. Also commissions are granted as the direct result of combat.

GI Education

Your education doesn't need to end when you become an enlisted man in the armed forces.

Along with teaching lessons for the battlefield, the military operates a multi-million dollar educational system of correspondence courses, on-base classrooms and partly or wholly paid tuition in civilian schools.

Available to the enlisted man are courses similar to or identical with those for officers.

They can lead the way along educational paths to promotion in rank or to officer commissions or skills that will be useful in civilian jobs.

The services have more than 300 on-base classrooms in the United States, plus others aboard ships or overseas. In addition, there are a dozen general programs under which tuition and some other expenses are paid partly or wholly. It is estimated that more than three-quarters of the subjects and courses taught at on-base schools are applicable in civilian jobs.

Correspondence Courses

Correspondence courses are high on the popularity list. About one million servicemen, both enlisted and officer personnel, are enrolled each year. Upwards of a thousand subjects are offered.

While each service operates its own educational system with its own requirements for entrance the Defense Department also runs joint schools.

The Tuition Assistance programs of the services, available to both enlisted and officer personnel on active duty, provide up to 75% of tuition fees for off-duty study at accredited schools or $14.25 per semester hour, whichever is less.

The United States Armed Force Institute program includes reduced fees for group, extension and correspondence courses. Its program ranges from elementary school subjects through second year college level.

Availability

Army Enlisted Schooling is available to all active duty personnel; training must meet an Army requirement. This assistance provides normal pay and allowances, plus tuition, books, training supplies and similar fees. It covers accredited universities, colleges, graduate schools or other civilian educational institutions. There is requirement that a man must reenlist for at least three years, with the length of the educational period no more than 50% of the enlistment.

The Army General Educational Development program, available at more than 300 Army educational centers in the U.S. and overseas, provides academic and vocational-technical and foreign language classes at little or no cost.

Army Degree Completion Program: this is available to personnel with three years service who can obtain a baccalaureate degree in 12 months or a graduate degree in six months of full time college attendance. This student receives normal pay and allowances, but pays all school expenses. He must serve two years after baccalaureate degree or four after graduate degree.

Navy Enlisted Scientific Education: Navy or Marine personnel in grade E-4 or above, with high school education.

In general, the draftee or enlistee is eligible for some of the elementary and other school courses in 60 days after going on active duty. However, basic and unit training may delay this.

In addition to the academic courses, the Army, Navy and Air Force have similar medical programs for which the student pays off in additional obligated service.

Bus Line Faces Loss Of $7,000

A National City Lines spokesman told a State Railway Commission examiner Tuesday that the Lincoln subsidiary faces a $7,000 net income loss, based on operating revenue, if its rate increase application is not approved.

Lincoln City Lines has filed for a base rate increase of five cents a trip, the 10th rate adjustment since the National City Lines took over control of the local bus company in 1943.

Current fares are 15 cents for adults and 10 cents for children under 12. The last major increase, from 10 cents to 15 cents a trip for adults, occurred in 1953. The application does not propose any fare rate change or additional transfer charges.

No One Appears

Frank R. Money, director of research and statistics for the Tampa, Fla., parent firm, testified that under the present fare structure, Lincoln City Lines' operating expenses would exceed actual projected passenger revenues for a 12-month period starting Aug. 1.

Only investments in bonds and other non-operating revenues, amounting to about $11,000, will allow the Lincoln company to clear an estimated $7,100 for the period, he said.

Higher operating expenses, larger employe salaries and equipment improvements, plus a decrease in the number of passengers carried and an increase in route mileage require a rate increase, Money argued.

Committee Backing

Also appearing was Preston E. Cherry, transportation superintendent for Lincoln City Lines, who testified that the fare increase is supported by the transportation committee of the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce.

Attorney John R. Doyle asked for quick action by the commission, indicating that the firm wants to implement the fare increase, if approved, by Aug. 1.

Hearing examiner Shirley Kling will submit a report to the five-member commission. A decision will be made later.

French Nuclear Tests May Begin This Week

Papeete, Tahiti (UPI) — The first of France's long-awaited nuclear tests in the Pacific is scheduled to begin Thursday or "as soon as possible thereafter."

All shipping in the South Pacific area was warned to stay clear of the waters surrounding Mururoa Atoll, about 800 miles southeast of this once-sleepy port.

French Overseas Territories Minister Pierre Billotte, who arrived here Saturday, paid a quick visit to the Atolls of Raiatea and Bora Bora and took pains to reassure the Polynesians that all precautions are being taken to insure their safety.

The first of the tests is expected to be a nuclear device and will be followed later this summer by the detonation of a thermonuclear device.

Three series of blasts are expected.

The first will consist of two low yield explosions, with a force less than that of 100,000 tons of TNT. These explosions are intended primarily to test observation blockhouses and recording equipment.

Informed sources said a second series of two explosions of unspecified force will be set off "under different conditions" — probably in August. These might be underwater blasts for the explosion of bombs dropped from Mirage 4 bombers in a "live" test of President Charles de Gaulle's "force de frappe."

Finally, a "fortified" atomic bomb designed to trigger hydrogen bombs will be set off, probably in September. This will be a bomb whose power has been increased by the addition of such elements as lithium and deuterium (heavy hydrogen) to its basic plutonium charge.

Lutheran Church In America Budget Is Nearly $30 Million

Kansas City (AP)—The third biennial convention of the Lutheran Church in America Tuesday approved budgets of $29,822,100 for 1967 and $30,728,000 for 1968.

The Rev. Dr. Franklin Clark Fry, president of the LCA, said that 10 of his church's operating units had their budget requests cut, ranging from less than one per cent to 14%.

Delegates were told that it is impossible the church may have to borrow operating funds before the year is out.

The budgets were approved as recommended by the executive council. The money will be used for operation of the boards and commissions and agencies of the 3,265,000-member church in the next biennium.

Earlier actions that approved a new pension plan for ministers and lay persons of the LCA added $435,000 to the 1967 budget and $415,000 to the 1968 budget. A new line was added to the budget, providing $125,000 each year for the Florida Lutheran retirement center.

The convention approved benevolence apportionments of $25,351,400 for 1967 and $26,114,000 for 1968.

New York City Scooter Riders Stage 'Park-In'

New York (AP) — About 35 Manhattan residents who use motor-scooters to commute to and from work staged a "peaceful park-in" on Park Avenue Tuesday to prove a point.

The scooter commuters were out to demonstrate that the city should allow them to park at angles to the curb and should provide special parking places for the vehicles.

The commuters say that when they park parallel to the curb, as the law requires, automobile drivers who want to use the spaces move the scooters to illegal spots where they are ticketed by police.

They wanted to show, they said, that if the city would convert some seldom-used taxi stands to scooter spaces and allow the scooters to angle park, it would save everyone a lot of trouble and the commuters a lot of money they now pay in parking tickets.

17 Given Head Start

Washington (UPI)—Sargent Shriver, director of the Office of Economic Opportunity, announced $455,008 in grants for 17 additional Head Start projects. The grants brought to 1,618 the total programs financed this summer to educate preschool, underprivileged children.

Group Aims To Eliminate Open Dumps Within County

Open dumps in Lancaster County are headed for extinction if the Lancaster County Solid Waste Advisory Commission (SWAC) has its way.

This was the essence of discussion at the group's Tuesday night meeting to which ten county villages sent representatives. Representatives were members of the village boards.

SWAC was formed recently at the urging of the Lancaster County commissioners and the City-County Health Board. SWAC's formation was prompted by the fact that the large number of open dumps scattered throughout the county have been shown to be health hazards.

Larry Drost, SWAC executive secretary, conducted studies for the health board which have pointed up the need for more efficient and sanitary disposal of solid waste.

Drost's studies have convinced health board members that the dumps are breeding places for rats, flies and other vermin and, that the dumps are a public eyesore.

During the next two months, SWAC members will concentrate on devising the "most sanitary and economical method for disposing of solid waste throughout Lancaster County."

A bus tour of the county's dumps will be made in August by SWAC.

Unit Won't Rush Auto Safety Bill

Washington (AP)—The House Commerce Committee refused Tuesday to speed consideration of auto safety legislation—rejecting a move to substitute the tough Senate-passed bill for its own version.

The committee also voted down, by a substantial margin, a proposal supported by the automobile industry to give a major role in setting new car safety standards to the Vehicle Equipment Safety Commission, a 44-state compact, instead of to the secretary of commerce.

Cunningham, Hruska Split

Washington (AP) — Two Nebraska members of the National Commission on Food Marketing split over the group's report.

The report was presented to President Johnson.

Rep. Glenn Cunningham signed the majority report while Sen. Roman Hruska signed the minority report. Both men are Republicans and from Omaha.

Those who signed the minority report contended the commission's study went beyond congressional intent by making a factual study without submitting conclusions or recommendations.

TALK

of the town

News of people who are going away isn't particularly unusual this season of the year unless, that is, the 'going away' means moving away. And that is what it means this morning as far as two Lincoln families are concerned.

We learned that Capt. and Mrs. Douglas Howell (Sue Jouvenat) and their two sons—Doug and Joel—will be leaving late in July for Montgomery, Ala., where the Air Force officer will attend Command and Staff School. We might add that Capt. Howell also will be working towards a Master's degree at the same time.

And day after tomorrow (Friday) Mr. and Mrs. Dale Wolff and the young Al, will be leaving Lincoln for Kansas City. As a matter of fact Mr. and Mrs. Wolff and their son will be living in a Kansas City suburb—Prairie Village, Kan.

We caught up with a guest foursome almost just in time to say goodbye. Mrs. Robert W. Serr and her three children, Robert, Steven and Sally, arrived from Des Moines, Iowa, a week ago for a visit with Mrs. Serr's mother, Mrs. Velma Hodder. Mrs. Serr and the children are leaving today—but not for Des Moines They are going to join Mr. Serr in St. Louis, Mo., where the family will be residing.

Also on the guest list are Mr. and Mrs. Stephen George who are guests at the home of Mr. George's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. George.

The visitors came to Lincoln from Ann Arbor, Mich., where Mr. George is a recent graduate of the University of Michigan Law School and was elected to the Order of the Coif. And last Friday Mrs. George completed work toward her Master of Arts degree at the University of Michigan.

Both Mr. and Mrs. George are graduates of the University of Nebraska where Mr. George is a member of Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, and Mrs. George of Alpha Omicron Pi sorority.

From Lincoln Mr. and Mrs. George will go to Pittsburgh, Pa., where Mr. George has accepted a position as an attorney, but we are told he will be reporting for military duty before long.

BRIDE

Miss Georgene Linda Poole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Poole of Arlington Heights, Ill., became the bride of Richard F. Eddy, son of Mrs. W. C. Eddy of Lincoln, and the late Mr. Eddy, at a candlelight service solemnized early Saturday evening, May 28, at St. James Catholic Church in Arlington Heights. The ceremony was read by the Rev. Robert Hinterberger.

Sheath frocks of ice-blue crepe and lace were worn by Mrs. Samuel Tolch of Morrison, Ill., the honor attendant; Miss Maureen Roberts, Washington, D.C., and Mrs. Herbert Hardwick, Lowell, Ind., the bridesmaids; and the junior bridesmaid, Miss Linda Carl.

Jack Murnane of Chicago served as best man, and seating the guests were John Beebe, North Miami, Fla., and Dr. Herbert Hardwick, Lowell, Ind.

The bride appeared in a gown of white peau de soie and Alencon lace. Seed pearl embroidery patterned the lace bodice, which was designed with elbow sleeves, and the lace motif was repeated in appliques on the bell skirt and panel train of silk. Her pouf veil of illusion was held by a cap of jeweled lace petals, and she carried a pinnacle arrangement of white orchids, stephanotis and ivy.

Mr. Eddy, a former student at the University of Nebraska and a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, and his bride will live in Arlington Heights. Mrs. Eddy is a graduate of Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill., and a member of Alpha Gamma Delta.

Plan Alumni Reunions

All graduates of University High School — and the former Teachers College High — are urged to contact the school office with information on school graduates so the newly-formed Alumni Association may plan for the June, 1967, alumni reunion.

The association met Tuesday evening to elect officers and plan for the final alumni meeting, in which it is hoped that all classes from 1911 through 1967 will be represented.

The 15th anniversary reunion of the Class of 1951, of Lincoln High School, will be held Saturday, July 2 at the Hotel Lincoln.

Reunion

The annual Portsche family reunion was held Sunday at Antelope Park with a record-breaking attendance of 132, with family members coming from Texas, Minnesota, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, California and Washington.

The group honored Mr. and Mrs. Ed Folmer, El Paso, Tex., and Mr. and Mrs. Paul Portsche, Lincoln, on their 25th wedding anniversaries

Marriage

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Barbara Ann Klein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arland Klein, to Thomas R. Choate, son of Mrs. Earl Choate of Spokane, Wash., on Saturday, June 11, at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Leona Klein. The lines of the 2 o'clock service were read by the Rev. Benjamin Rieger, minister of the First German Congregational Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Choate will make their home at El Paso, Tex., Air Force Base.

Outdoor Beauty Hint

Remember to surround yourself with an aura of loveliness whenever you venture out on the beach, on the golf course, or anywhere in the outdoors. Wear a shady hat and sunglasses, and protect your complexion from the harsh rays of the sun by smoothing on a film of oil of Olay under your make-up each day.

NEWS

of suburban areas

Variety being the proverbial spice, today's Suburbia news certainly can be called "salty." Berlene Heights has some prize-winning chicken cooks; a Cotner Terrace family had an active part in a huge family reunion, and the traffic is heavy in Maple Village again.

BERLENE HEIGHTS

Not many vacationers can return home with contest prizes, but the Emil J. Hynek family did just that. Mr. and Mrs. Hynek, and their children, Bobby and Diane, entered the National Chicken Cooking Contest, in Pocomoke City, Md. The results: Mr. Hynek won fifth prize in the outdoor division, and a charcoal broiler; and Bobby Hynek was the recipient of an electric stove (!) as fourth place winner in the junior division.

The Hyneks used this contest as an excuse to do a little traveling during the past two weeks. They did some sightseeing in Washington, D.C., and were the houseguests of Mr. Hynek's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lundberg in Huntsville, Ala.

And Bobby Hynek wasn't content to sit still for even a few days, so he took off for Boy Scout camp in Humboldt this week.

COTNER TERRACE

Descendants of John Lanz gathered from as far away as Snohomish, Wash., and Anadarko, Okla., for a reunion in Bassett last week. Among those present were Mrs. Lee Kruse, of Lincoln, and her children, Mark and Michele, who just returned from two weeks in Bassett as the houseguests of Mrs. Kruse's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lanz.

The reunion of the Lanz descendants this year was the result of an anonymous suggestion, said Mrs. Kruse, and grew (two months planning's worth) from there into the proposed annual affair. It will be held the Sunday following their high school alumni banquet every year. This year's event attended by 150 assorted Lanz relatives, was held in the Bassett Legion Hall. The late John Lanz, who settled in Bassett in 1892, would have been proud to see this gathering of his far-flung family.

MAPLE VILLAGE

Busy new arrivals to Maple Village are Mr. and Mrs. Duane Hunter, and their children, Tami, 7, Mike, 6, and Heidi, 2. The Hunters moved from Omaha to Lincoln the first of June. They are in the process of building a new home into which they hope to move this August.

Opening lead—king of diamonds.

Let's say you have the West hand and are defending against four spades. You lead the king of diamonds, partner playing the eight and South the five, and you then have a problem of what to do next.

Of course, you don't see the East or South hands as you try to work out a solution. However, after wrestling with the various possibilities for a while, you reach the conclusion that unless your partner has some values in hearts you won't be able to beat the contract.

Accordingly, you attack hearts, being careful to lead a low one at trick two ot cover the possibility that East has the doubleton king.

Your judgment is vindicated when it turns out that East wins the trick with the king, South playing the deuce. East returns the jack on which South plays the eight, but if you get careless now, and let East win the trick with the jack, all your efforts go down the drain.

East would be unable to play another heart, not having one, and declarer would later discard the Q9 of hearts on the clubs and wind up with ten tricks.

Overtaking the jack with the ace and returning a heart for partner to ruff is a reasonable line of play even if you cannot see all four hands.

First, you know that South has the queen because East would have won the first heart lead with the jack had he started with the KQJ.

Second, you can be sure that if South's heart holding were the Q-8-2 he would cover the jack with the queen in order to make the ten in dummy a trick.

The only sensible conclusion to reach is that South started with the Q982 and that he ducked the jack in the hope that you would duck also. It is therefore clear that you should overtake the jack with the ace and return a heart for East to ruff.

GOOD READING

habits for children urged by librarian

Mrs. Bentley aids two young readers in their selections.

The family that reads together, feels together, is the advice that Elizabeth L. (Mrs. Frederick W.) Bentley gives today's parents.

In her capacity as co-ordinator of children's services for the Lincoln City Libraries, Mrs. Bentley works at the betterment of family life through the promotion of children's reading programs.

In a recent conversation, she stressed the "warmth of family feeling" that results when children and their parents share in reading aloud and trips to the library. "The fun of reading together can be a definite unifying force," particularly in today's world which is too often characterized by families that spend little time together, she said.

In this particular librarian, "fun" pervades her personality as much as it does her attitude toward children's reading.

The word "librarian" normally brings to mind a quaint grey-haired lady with horn-rimmed glasses who gives the impression that books belong on the shelves, rather than in circulation. Such is not the case with librarian Bentley, however. She's an attractive, vivacious grandmother who keeps children hopping as she searches out a book to interest them.

Fun, too, is the emphasis of the programs which the library promotes for Lincoln's younger set. "Roundup!" is the theme of this summer's traditional reading program. As the young reader progresses through the requirement of reading 12 books, he climbs the rancher's hierarchy. He begins as ranch hand and completes the summer with the rank of ranch owner and the option to design and post his own cattle brand.

Besides the fun of reading, problems incurred in the selection of books and in the means of encouraging children to read concern Mrs. Bentley. During the course of the conversation she discussed some of these problems.

Regarding the troubles parents have in knowing what books should be read by their children, Mrs. Bentley produced a number of sources which list books available on specific topics for specific age groups. Each of these pamphlets, which are available free to parents that ask for them, contain a bibliography of other sources with similar listings.

"So you see," Mrs. Bentley concluded, "the parents that are really interested in finding books that will interest their children, will have little trouble finding places to turn for the information." "And that's what we librarians are here for, too," she added.

The importance of home-reading in furthering verbal skills, Mrs. Bentley continued, cannot be de-emphasized. Educators and professional people alike have shown us the faults of limited word power, and good reading habits, of course, are the best means of overcoming this problem, she said.

The first maxim in the promotion of good reading habits in children, she said, is that "children will read if their parents do." With this rule in mind, it is her hope that parents who have known the effects of poor reading habits, as well as those who enjoy reading, will encourage their children to do better, by setting the example.

Summer reading is particularly important for pre-fourth grade children, Mrs. Bentley contends. Without the practice during the summer, she fears, children often forget much they learned during the school year. At this age, she thinks it is wise to discipline children to read, but emphasizes that "reading should never be connected with punishment or made otherwise unenjoyable."

Disciplining after the fourth grade is difficult. "By that time, if a child is going to read, he will; but if by then he doesn't want to read, he probably will never want to," she said. After the child has a disciplined habit of reading, outside activities seldom affect the amount of reading that is done. But it's the child who doesn't enjoy reading, that always finds other things to do, Mrs. Bentley said.

In comparison to the "Little Women" or "Five Little Peppers" series of yore, Mrs. Bentley cited the following series of books as some of the most popular with young people today.

For ages 4-6:

"B Is For Betsy" and other books in the series by Carolyn Haywood

The "Henry Huggins" series by Beverly Cleary

For ages 7 and up:

The "Bean Malone" series by Lenora Weber

The "Little House" books by Lois Lenski

ABBY

everything has its place

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to you once before about this problem, but I turned chicken and tore up the letter. The problem has come up again, and this time I've made up my mind to mail it. My husband has been interested in nudism for some time, and has tried to get me to go to a nudist camp. I have nothing against camps like that, but I am just not the type who could strip down naked in front of so many people.

We have had a lot of arguments about this, and have even come close to getting a divorce over it. I don't see how normal pepole could go to a place like that without getting a few "evil" thoughts. Am I wrong to think this way, or am I level minded? And do you htink a man who really loved his wife could bear to see her walking naked in front of other men?

ANTI-NUDIST

DEAR ANTI: One's attitudes about nudity are based on his early training, acquired inhibitions, and the customs and culture of the society in which he exists. Some people adopt unconventional beliefs that are not, necessarily, "evil minded." I believe, however, that everything has its place. Including the fig leaf.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married four years and didn't seem able to have children. My sister had four little girls. Last year when her husband was in the penitentiary she started running around and got pregnant. She told us if we paid all her expenses we could have the baby when it was born. We agreed, and she went to the hospital, under my name, and had an adorable baby boy. It didn't seem to bother her to give it up at first, altho I knew she always wanted a boy.

She lives near us, and comes over every day to help with the baby. He is a doll, and I can see while she's holding or feeding him how much she loves him. It's about to drive me crazy. I have the funniest feeling the baby knows where he belongs. I love my sister, and it kills me to see her hurt. I feel like I have taken away the only thing she has ever really wanted. I love the baby, too. What should I do?

MIXED UP

DEAR MIXED UP: If you and your husband legally adopted the child and were to move away and sever all ties with your sister, only then could it work out. But as long as you remain where your sister can see him every day you'll have no peace of mind. So you might as well give the baby back to his mother and adopt one thru an agency.

GOOD READING

habits for children urged by librarian

Mrs. Bentley aids two young readers in their selections.

The family that reads together, feels together, is the advice that Elizabeth L. (Mrs. Frederick W.) Bentley gives today's parents.

In her capacity as co-ordinator of children's services for the Lincoln City Libraries, Mrs. Bentley works at the betterment of family life through the promotion of children's reading programs.

In a recent conversation, she stressed the "warmth of family feeling" that results when children and their parents share in reading aloud and trips to the library. "The fun of reading together can be a definite unifying force," particularly in today's world which is too often characterized by families that spend little time together, she said.

In this particular librarian, "fun" pervades her personality as much as it does her attitude toward children's reading.

The word "librarian" normally brings to mind a quaint grey-haired lady with horn-rimmed glasses who gives the impression that books belong on the shelves, rather than in circulation. Such is not the case with librarian Bentley, however. She's an attractive, vivacious grandmother who keeps children hopping as she searches out a book to interest them.

Fun, too, is the emphasis of the programs which the library promotes for Lincoln's younger set. "Round-up!" is the theme of this summer's traditional reading program. As the young reader progresses through the requirement of reading 12 books, he climbs the rancher's hierarchy. He begins as ranch hand and completes the summer with the rank of ranch owner and the option to design and post his own cattle brand.

Besides the fun of reading, problems incurred in the selection of books and in the means of encouraging children to read concern Mrs. Bentley. During the course of the conversation she discussed some of these problems.

Regarding the troubles parents have in knowing what books should be read by their children, Mrs. Bentley produced a number of sources which list books available on specific topics for specific age groups. Each of these pamphlets, which are available free to parents that ask for them, contain a bibliography of other sources with similar listings.

"So you see," Mrs. Bentley concluded, "the parents that are really interested in finding books that will interest their children, will have little trouble finding places to turn for the information." "And that's what we librarians are here for, too," she added.

The importance of home-reading in furthering verbal skills, Mrs. Bentley continued, cannot be de-emphasized. Educators and professional people alike have shown us the faults of limited word power, and good reading habits, of course, are the best means of overcoming this problem, she said.

The first maxim in the promotion of good reading habits in children, she said, is that "children will read if their parents do." With this rule in mind, it is her hope that parents who have known the effects of poor reading habits, as well as those who enjoy reading, will encourage their children to do better, by setting the example.

Summer reading is particularly important for pre-fourth grade children, Mrs. Bentley contends. Without the practice during the summer, she fears, chldren often forget much they learned during the school year. At this age, she thinks it is wise to discipline children to read, but emphasizes that "reading should never be connected with punishment or made otherwise unenjoyable."

Disciplining after the fourth grade is difficult. "By that time, if a child is going to read, he will; but if by then he doesn't want to read, he probably will never want to," she said. After the child has a disciplined habit of reading, outside activities seldom affect the amount of reading that is done. But it's the child who doesn't enjoy reading, that always finds other things to do, Mrs. Bentley said.

In comparison to the "Little Women" or "Five Little Peppers" series of yore, Mrs. Bentley cited the following series of books as some of the most popular with young people today.

For ages 4-6:

"B Is For Betsy" and other books in the series by Carolyn Haywood

The "Henry Huggins" series by Beverly Cleary

For ages 7 and up:

The "Bean Malone" series by Lenora Weber

ABBY

everything has its place

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I wrote to you once before about this problem, but I turned chicken and tore up the letter. The problem has come up again, and this time I've made up my mind to mail it. My husband has been interested in nudism for some time, and has tried to get me to go to a nudist camp. I have nothing against camps like that, but I am just not the type who could strip down naked in front of so many people.

We have had a lot of arguments about this, and have even come close to getting a divorce over it. I don't see how normal pepole could go to a place like that without getting a few "evil" thoughts Am I wrong to think this way, or am I level minded? And do you htink a man who really loved his wife could bear to see her walking naked in front of other men?

ANTI-NUDIST

DEAR ANTI: One's attitudes about nudity are based on his early training, acquired inhibitions, and the customs and culture of the society in which he exists. Some people adopt unconventional beliefs that are not, necessarily, "evil minded." I believe, however, that everything has its place. Including the fig leaf.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married four years and didn't seem able to have children. My sister had four little girls. Last year when her husband was in the penitentiary she started running around and got pregnant. She told us if we paid all her expenses we could have the baby when it was born. We agreed, and she went to the hospital, under my name, and had an adorable baby boy. It didn't seem to bother her to give it up at first, altho I knew she always wanted a boy.

She lives near us, and comes over every day to help with the baby. He is a doll, and I can see while she's holding or feeding him how much she loves him. It's about to drive me crazy. I have the funniest feeling the baby knows where he belongs. I love my sister, and it kills me to see her hurt. I feel like I have taken away the only thing she has ever really wanted. I love the baby, too. What should I do?

MIXED UP

DEAR MIXED UP: If you and your husband legally adopted the child and were to move away and sever all ties with your sister, only then could it work out. But as long as you remain where your sister can see him every day you'll have no peace of mind. So you might as well give the baby back to his mother and adopt one thru an agency.

Ho Reported In Peking; Aides Go To Moscow

London (UPI)—North Vietnamese President Ho Chi Minh apparently has gone to Peking to confer with Red Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung while other Hanoi aides have gone to Moscow for emergency talks on the Viet Nam war, diplomatic sources said Tuesday.

Both North Vietnamese missions were believed linked to Peking's continued refusal to cooperate in a joint communist aid effort for North Viet Nam and possible diplomatic initiatives.

There also was diplomatic speculation that Ho wanted to clear with the two communist powers North Viet Nam's attitude towards possible peace developments, or alternatively a stepped up war.

The diplomatic reports said Peking, however, has turned down an attempt by Romania to persuade Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-lai to allow war equipment for North Viet Nam from Russia and East European countries to be moved swiftly through Chinese territory.

Denney Sees LBJ Big Sell Campaign

Republican Robert V. Denney, candidate for First District congressman, said Tuesday President Johnson will begin a "well-financed, big sell" campaign in Nebraska and elsewhere after Labor Day

"President Johnson won't give up a seat in Congress without a fight," he said.

Denney a Fairbury attorney seeks to unseat Rep. Clair Callan, D-Neb., in the Nov. 8 election

"All of us are going to hear that we've never had it so good" Denney said "Statistics will be issued daily from the Department of Commerce comparing the gross national product (GNP) with the GNP of the Eisenhower administration days."

But Denney said after all the figures have been compiled and the speeches made, "Every American will have to ask himself if government dominated by one man and a rubber stamp Congress is meeting the needs of our time.

"Those who today express fear and dissatisfaction with this one-man government can best demonstrate their insecurity by replacing the rubber stamps with new faces and new ideas."

Doctor Fears Medicare Extension

Chicago (AP)—The new head of the American Medical Association declared Tuesday there is a "real threat" that the government Medicare program may be extended to all ages and income brackets.

In his inaugural address to the annual AMA convention, Dr. Charles L Hudson of Cleveland said, "The medical profession now faces openly adverse criticism as it begins to provide its services in a new system of health care financing that is unwanted by many Americans, protested, and in my opinion unnecessary . . .

"We may be apprehensive about the possibility of restriction of freedom of professional judgement, or feel the hurt of implication and assertion that the provision of medical care requires the intervention of the federal government, or we may expect imposition of multiple new clerical tasks.

"However, these factors, to my mind, are not the real threat of the Social Security amendments. Rather, it is the possibility, through reduction of the age limit under Title 18 and elevation of the eligibility income level under Title 19, of expansion to a national health service, covering everyone, and financed from the federal treasury exclusively."

Toll Forecast Said 'Grisly Numbers Game'

Chicago (AP) — A group of physicians charged Tuesday that the "grisly numbers game" of predicting holiday deaths is worthless and offered their own tips for surviving the July 4 weekend.

Dr. Seymour Charles, Newark, N.J., pediatrician, told a news conference at the American Medical Association convention: "The National Safety Council's scare psychology doesn't work — it's just a grisly numbers game, and meaningless.

"The motorist needs specific things to do, or specific things to avoid."

Dr. Charles, president of the 250-member Physicians for Automotive Safety, and Dr. John States, Rochester, N.Y., orthopedist and president of the 350-member American Association for Automotive Medicine, said pleas for safer driving "have failed miserably in reducing the toll of death and injury."

Instead, they urged holiday travelers to stay out of cars—buses, trains and planes are safer, they said.

The National Safety Council said it works on traffic 365 days a year and does not consider its holiday estimates of fatalities as "a scare campaign."

Most Mississippi Care Uncertified

Washington (AP) — President Johnson was told Tuesday that despite 92.2% compliance across the country, Mississippi so far has only 26.6% of its hospital beds certified for Medicare under the Civil Rights Act.

The problem was discussed at a White House conference, while the Republican Coordinating Committee was charging that the administration is guilty of "gross negligence" in preparing for Medicare.

No Suppression, But . . .

Accra, Ghana (UPI)—Acting defense chief Maj. Gen. E. K. Kotka said the government would not replace the suppressive policies of ousted President Kwame Nkrumah with suppression of its own. But he said: "We can be ruthless if it becomes necessary."

Good drivers have shifty eyes. Especially over the Fourth.

There's something more to safe driving than just obeying the law. It's called "defensive driving." And it begins by keeping your eyes on the move, scanning the road, watching traffic around you. Just in case someone makes a mistake.

Here are six situations that can result in a two-car accident. For each, there's a simple defensive preparation. Study and remember them. They work. (Our test drivers have proved it in over 339,000,000 miles of driving since 1924 at the GM Proving Grounds.)

The driver ahead of you brakes suddenly. Defense: Keep more distance than you think you need between you and the car ahead of you. At 60 mph, for instance, with good tires and on a dry road you need at least 300 feet to stop your car. (Most people think it's a lot less.) On wet or slippery roads, give yourself even greater leeway.

The driver in back of you is tailgating. Defense: Never speed up. Slow down gradually and encourage the tailgater to pass. If you're going to turn or stop, signal your intentions well in advance.

The car passing you cuts in sharply. Defense: As you're being passed, stay to the right and slow down, if necessary. By helping the other driver to pass, you protect yourself.

Another driver wants to pass when you do. Defense: Let him pass, then check the traffic before you pull out. Use your horn or lights to warn the driver in front. Pass quickly and return to your lane only when you see him in your rear-view mirror.

Another car approaches from a side road. Defense: As you approach the intersection, take your foot off the accelerator and poise it over the brake, ready to yield the right of way.

One thing more. If you feel fatigue coming on, try sitting in another position. Or tune to another radio station. Or pop a piece of candy into your mouth. If that doesn't work, pull off the road and rest a while.

By keeping alert, you can enjoy your trip a lot more. And you can save yourself and the other fellow from his mistakes. Over the Fourth. Or any time, for that matter.

One of the most important things we've learned about safety over the last 58 years is this:

Safe driving depends on three things. THE CAR THE ROAD AND YOU Pass it on.

The special assistant attor- y general who defended the l-fated power merger law id Tuesday there are still enues open to force a mer- r of the operations of the ree major power districts fected by the 1965 legisla- on

However, the attorney, ichard D. Wilson of Lincoln, id the merger would have be effected through "an en- rely different bill" which ould not call for creation of new, separate corpora- on."

He said a new law probably ould prompt further litiga- on

The State Supreme Court ruck down the 1965 act as constitutional Friday, de- uring among other things at the law was defective be- use it created a corporation rough special legislation.

To End Conflict

The law, consolidating the nolesale operations of the nsumers and Loup River ublic Power Districts and atte Valley Public Power d Irrigation District into a ngle grid system, was de- gned to end conflict between e three utilities.

"I don't think that from a gal standpoint the decision ohibits the putting of Loup, atte and Consumers togeth- ," said Wilson, general unsel for CPPD who was med to defend the law by ty. Gen. Clarence A. H. eyer. "The decision does es- blish an absolute prohibi- n against the Legislature's tablishing a special corpor- on by law."

He suggested a single board uld be established to oper- the three districts which uld retain their separate ntities.

The Key

"Setting up no new corpor- on is the key," Wilson said.

The Supreme Court also in- lidated the merger law be- use it prohibited residents Douglas and Sarpy Coun- s from voting for grid sys- n directors and represented legislative encroachment on the appointive powers of governor by restricting selection of the initial grid stem board.

Wilson said those defects uld be corrected without y trouble.

The attorney noted the Su- eme Court decision did not ch on a contention that the rger would have impaired outstanding bonds of the tricts to be merged, and at issue remains unre- ved.

POWER . . .

Merger By New Law Possible

By Associated Press

The special assistant attorney general who defended the ill-fated power merger law said Tuesday there are still avenues open to force a merger of the operations of the three major power districts affected by the 1965 legislation.

However, the attorney, Richard D. Wilson of Lincoln, said the merger would have to be effected through "an entirely different bill" which would not call for creation of "a new, separate corporation."

He said a new law probably would prompt further litigation.

The State Supreme Court struck down the 1965 act as unconstitutional Friday, declaring among other things that the law was defective because it created a corporation through special legislation.

To End Conflict

The law, consolidating the wholesale operations of the Consumers and Loup River Public Power Districts and Platte Valley Public Power and Irrigation District into a single grid system, was designed to end conflict between the three utilities.

"I don't think that from a legal standpoint the decision prohibits the putting of Loup, Platte and Consumers together," said Wilson, general counsel for CPPD who was named to defend the law by Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer. "The decision does establish an absolute prohibition against the Legislature's establishing a special corporation by law."

He suggested a single board could be established to operate the three districts which would retain their separate identities.

The Key

"Setting up no new corporation is the key," Wilson said.

The Supreme Court also invalidated the merger law because it prohibited residents of Douglas and Sarpy Counties from voting for grid system directors and represented a legislative encroachment upon the appointive powers of the governor by restricting his selection of the initial grid system board.

Wilson said those defects could be corrected without any trouble.

The attorney noted the Supreme Court decision did not touch on a contention that the merger would have impaired the outstanding bonds of the districts to be merged, and that issue remains unresolved.

Personally, Nisley said, he's not "satisfied with Curtis' record and Morrison has not had an opportunity to make a record on national affairs."

In the past, the State AFL-CIO has backed Morrison. But last fall Nisley told the labor group's state convention:

"It is beyond all realm of reasoning to continue the support of such a person (Morrison) supposedly the friend dedicated to the welfare of organized labor."

At that time, Nisley accused the governor of slapping the state's working class by supporting Nebraska's right-to-work law and repeal of the full-crew train act as it applied to freights.

The COPE candidate selections will be submitted to the AFL-CIO convention Sept. 26.

Medicare To Cut County Costs

By LUCILLE HUTCHINSON
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County medical costs for welfare recipients over 65 will be considerably lower after the Medicare program becomes effective Friday, but no actual dollar saving is forthcoming, according to state and county officials.

Title 19 of Medicare, which essentially replaces the Kerr-Mills program, makes federal matching dollars available to pay as much as 61% of the medical bills of persons under Nebraska's public assistance program.

However, the money saved with the increased federal participation in welfare recipients' medical payments will enable state and county money to be used for improved medical services as required by law.

Title 19

Expenditure rates must be maintained by the Departments of Institutions and Welfare, administrators of Title 19, State Welfare Director John Gage emphasized.

The state has been paying approximately $14 million per year on medical welfare assistance with about $8 million paid by federal funds, according to E. D. Warnsholz, legal consultant for the Department of Welfare.

The state and county have been sharing the remaining $6 million, he said, with the state paying about 25% and the county 20%.

When Medicare begins, Title 19 funds—matched by state and county money—will pick up the expenses for the aged welfare recipients that Medicare does not cover and that have to be paid by the patients themselves.

Federal Share

This includes the first $40 of hospitalization costs during the first 60 days in the hospital, the $10 per day for an additional 30 days and all costs after those 90 days; the first $20 and 20% of the rest of the costs for outpatient diagnostic tests; the first $50 and 20% of the other charges for services covered under the medical insurance portion of the program if the patient is enrolled.

State and county welfare funds share the cost of purchasing the $3 per month premium per recipient over 65 for doctor's insurance. The premium is being paid for approximately 600 elderly persons in Lancaster County, a Welfare Department spokesman estimated.

The 1965 Legislature approved a formula for state and county participation under Title 19 of 19% for the state and 20% for the county, balancing the 61% federal share, Warnsholz said.

Paying 20% of the first $40 hospitalization is considerable saving to the county over paying 20% of the total cost of hospitalization, Lancaster County Welfare Director Earle Trabert said

County Savings

For example, a $200 hospitalization bill would have cost the county $40 before July 1. When Medicare takes effect, the county only will have to pay $8 for the total $200 bill if the hospital stay is less than 60 days.

A further saving will come to Lancaster County with welfare recipients over 65 required to find their own doctors instead of using the county clinic, Trabert explained. However, the amount which the clinic staff can be cut, if any, will not be known until after three months—a reasonable time for the elderly persons to find their own doctor, he said.

Savings to Lancaster County will be used to improve other welfare medical services, Trabert reported.

Under Title 19 the federal government also will increase its participation and broaden its coverage in helping finance the monthly hospitalization cost of mental welfare patients over 65.

However, since Medicare Title 19 funds cannot be used for anything but additional services, the county-levied mental tax collected by the state cannot be eliminated.

State Can't Help Finance South Sioux Span

By Associated Press

Atty. Gen. Clarence A. H. Meyer said Tuesday the Nebraska Roads Department could not participate in the financing of a Missouri River bridge at Sioux City, Iowa, under a revenue bond plan unless the state constitution were changed.

Meyer said the Nebraska Constitution prohibits state agencies and departments from incurring debts totaling more than $100,000.

He said Nebraska counties or cities could form a bridge commission and issue revenue bonds to finance the project.

However, State Engineer John Hossack said he fears that Congress, which must approve all interstate bridges, would frown on a local commission as sponsor of the project and bonding companies might be reluctant to underwrite a locally sponsored project.

Fastest Way

Nebraska and Iowa highway officials agreed at a meeting Monday that the fastest way to construct a Sioux City bridge is to issue revenue bonds, then pay off the debt with toll collections.

The bridge, connecting Sioux City with South Sioux City, Neb., would cost $8 million to $14 million, depending on its location and size. It would be the second bridge between the two cities

Meyer said Hossack has broad authority to enter into interstate compacts for operation and maintenance of such a bridge and could even help with the planning and construction of the bridge if the authorizing legislation were enacted.

But the constitution ties the department's hands on financing, Meyer noted.

State Agencies To Have Daily Financial Report

By Associated Press

Daily reports on their financial position are expected to start being made available to state agencies around mid-July, according to State Administrative Services Director Willard Townsend.

The reports will be manufactured nightly on the state's computer.

Set out will be expenditures, unexpended balances in the agency's quarterly allotment, and related information

The function was provided for in legislation creating the department of administrative services.

The reports will permit agencies to eliminate much of their present internal record keeping work, and overtake a situation in which many agencies have no certain idea how much money is available to them for expenditure at any given time.

Sigler Will Boost Pay Of Guards

By United Press International

State Penal Complex Warden Maurice Sigler said Tuesday he has decided to go ahead and increase guard's salaries to a minimum of $350 a month. Current base pay is $309 a month.

Sigler said he would make the recommendations to State Institutions Director George Morris, who said he would okay the increases.

The salary hikes will put the Penal Complex budget in a $217,660 deficit during the last six or seven weeks of this biennium, Sigler said, which will require a supplemental appropriation by the Legislature.

Earlier, the warden and Morris appeared before the Legislative Council's interim budget committee. The committee gave no firm assurance it would recommend to the full Unicameral that the supplemental appropriation be granted.

Sigler said the salary boosts are necessary if the Penitentiary and Reformatory are to hire and keep guards.

He said the current 25% turnover in guards presents his security system with a problem.

Tax Values Still Running Ahead Of '65

By Associated Press

The value of property for tax purposes in Nebraska continues to run slightly ahead of last year in counties reporting their figures to the tax commissioner's office — but just barely.

With 72 of Nebraska's 93 counties reported, the unofficial total of tangible property actual valuations Tuesday topped last year's comparable figures by scarcely one-half of one per cent.

Of the 11 most recently reporting counties, three—Cherry, Keith and Perkins — show reductions. In all three, county taxing officials either scaled back or erased rural land and improvement valuation increases ordered last summer by the State Board of Equalization.

July 1 is the deadline for submission of county tax abstracts.

Douglas and Lancaster are among the 21 counties yet to report.

Farmers Needn't Register Trucks Hauling Produce

The State Justice Department said Tuesday the statutory exemption from commercial registration for farmers' trucks extends only to vehicles used in the marketing of the farmers' own products.

The department said any truck used by a farmer to deliver and sell agricultural products which he did not produce must be registered as a commercial vehicle, requiring payment of a higher registration fee.

The opinion was written for Clay County Atty. Jay J. Sullivan of Clay Center.

Lincolnite Breaks Probation, Faces One-Year Term

Harold D. Smith, 20, of 1127 So. 22nd, Tuesday was sentenced to one year in the Nebraska Penal and Correctional Complex for destruction of property.

Lancaster County District Judge Herbert Ronin sentenced Smith to the prison term after the defendant broke probation to which he originally had been sentenced.

Smith was charged with destroying personal property of Charles Samuelson, causing damage of more than $100.

Sigler Will Boost Pay Of Guards

By United Press International

State Penal Complex Warden Maurice Sigler said Tuesday he has decided to go ahead and increase guard's salaries to a minimum of $350 a month. Current base pay is $309 a month.

Sigler said he would make the recommendations to State Institutions Director George Morris, who said he would okay the increases.

The salary hikes will put the Penal Complex budget in a $217,660 deficit during the last six or seven weeks of this biennium, Sigler said, which will require a supplemental appropriation by the Legislature.

Earlier, the warden and Morris appeared before the Legislative Council's interim budget committee. The committee gave no firm assurance it would recommend to the full Unicameral that the supplemental appropriation be granted.

Sigler said the salary boosts are necessary if the Penitentiary and Reformatory are to hire and keep guards.

He said the current 25% turnover in guards presents his security system with a problem.

Tax Values Still Running Ahead Of '65

By Associated Press

The value of property for tax purposes in Nebraska continues to run slightly ahead of last year in counties reporting their figures to the tax commissioner's office — but just barely.

With 72 of Nebraska's 93 counties reported, the unofficial total of tangible property actual valuations Tuesday topped last year's comparable figures by scarcely one-half of one per cent.

Of the 11 most recently reporting counties, three—Cherry, Keith and Perkins — show reductions. In all three, county taxing officials either scaled back or erased rural land and improvement valuation increases ordered last summer by the State Board of Equalization.

July 1 is the deadline for submission of county tax abstracts.

Douglas and Lancaster are among the 21 counties yet to report.

NATIONAL LEAGUE STARS

Morgan Cardenas Santo McCovey

AMERICAN LEAGUE STARS

McAuliffe Scott Knoop Robinson

Santo May Not Be Recovered

. . . EACH TEAM REPRESENTED

New York (AP)—No more than one player from any team was named Tuesday to the starting infields for the All-Star baseball game in St. Louis, July 12. But an injury to third baseman Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs may result in two San Francisco infielders playing for the National League.

Santo was selected for the NL along with first baseman Willie McCovey of San Francisco, second baseman Joe Morgan of Houston and shortstop Leo Cardenas of Cincinnati.

The American League will open with rookie first baseman George Scott of Boston, second baseman Bobby Knoop of California, shortstop Dick McAuliffe of Detroit and third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore.

Santo edged Jim Ray Hart of the Giants, 151 votes to 125. However, the Cubs' star suffered a fractured cheekbone when hit by a pitched ball in Sunday's game against the New York Mets and underwent surgery Monday.

Morgan is another doubtful starter. He suffered a broken knee cap last Saturday. Closest to the Astros' second baseman in the voting was Jim Lefebvre of Los Angeles.

Presumably substitution will be made if Santo and Morgan are unable to play. NL Manager Walt Alston of Los Angeles will have to ask. Sam Male of Minnesota is the AL manager.

The Orioles' Robinson was the leading vote-getter on both starting infields, collecting 257. He and McAuliffe were the only repeaters from last year's starters.

McCovey topped the National League with 214 votes. The starters were selected in balloting by players, managers and coaches in each league. No one was permitted to vote for a player on his own team. Due to varying numbers of players on the rosters when the voting was conducted, there were 294 ballots in the National League and 287 in the American.

The National League leads in the series with 18 victories, 17 defeats and one tie. The senior circuit has won the last three games and seven of the last eight.

The announcement of the voting by Commissioner William D. Eckert's office was a change from past procedure. In previous years, the entire starting line-up, except for pitchers, were released at the same time.

The names of the starting outfielders will be released Thursday and the catchers Sunday. The pitching staffs and the rest of the 25-man squads will be named later.

Bunning Blanks Mets On 2 Hits

. . . BASEBALL ROUNDUP

By Associated Press

Philadelphia pitcher Jim Bunning overcame a shaky start and pitched a two-hitter Tuesday night as the Phils beat the New York Mets, 1-0.

Loser Bob Friend also only gave up two hits, but one of them was a long home run over the wall in right center field by Bill White, his 13th homer of the year.

Bunning gave up three walks in the first inning, but emerged unscathed and didn't give up a hit till the fifth. Friend also went hitless through the first four innings.

Roberto Clemente and Jose Pagan drove in runs with singles in the fifth inning to boost Pittsburgh to a 4-3 win over Houston. Bob Veale won his ninth game of the season.

Sammy Ellis gave Los Angeles just five hits as he pitched Cincinnati to a 3-1 win over the Dodgers. It was the Reds' 10th victory in 11 games. Tommy Harper was the big hitter for Cincinnati with a homer and two singles.

Bob Bolin pitched a two-hitter to lead San Francisco to a 7-1 win over St. Louis. Bolin had a no-hitter till former teammate Orlando Cepeda hit a single with one out in the seventh. Willie Mays hit a two-run homer in the eighth, his 18th of the season.

Joe Torre drove in three runs with his 17th homer of the year and a single to give Atlanta a 4-2 win over Chicago. Except for Torre's hits, Cub pitcher Ken Holtzman allowed only a double by Hank Aaron, but those four hits were enough. Winning pitcher was reliever Clay Carroll.

Kansas City ended Baltimore's win streak at three games, beating the Orioles 4-3. Chuck Dobson, Ken Sanders and Jack Aker combined to limit Baltimore to six hits.

George Thomas and Mike Ryan homered in Boston's 5-3 triumph over New York, despite two home runs by Mickey Mantle. The Sox took advantage of five New York errors for three unearned runs and Jose Santiago picked up his seventh win.

Don Lock hit a three-run homer in the first inning to lead Washington to a 4-1 victory over Chicago. Mike McCormick won his fifth game of the season and helped himself with a home run of his own. Bill Skowron homered in the seventh for the White Sox' only run.

Willie Horton drove in five runs with two singles and a homer as the Detroit Tigers exploded for 20 hits and smashed California, 15-3.

The victory went to right-hander Earl Wilson, 7-6, who aided his own cause with two singles and a triple before retiring with a pulled leg muscle after the seventh inning.

Al Kaline and Norm Cash homered for the Tigers off loser Clyde Wright, 1-2, who was knocked out in the third inning when Detroit went ahead, 5-0. The homers were Kaline's 13th of the year and Cash's 12th.

City Youth Bowling Lauded

Bud Wilkinson, director of the nation's youth physical fitness program under President Kennedy and now head of the Lifetime Sports Foundation, praised Lincoln Recreation Superintendent Robert M. Dula for adopting the "100-Plus Youth Bowler Development Program" in this area.

Lincoln youngsters who have enrolled in the program will receive five weeks of summer bowling instruction at selected centers cooperating with the United States Bowling Development Institute.

Balls, shoes and other equipment are furnished to the youth during the special five-week program.

Record Bass Taken By Bow

Another gigantic largemouth bass has hit the beach by way of bow and arrow to add a new name to the record books, reports the Game Commission.

Archer Jerry Grasmick of Scottsbluff collected an 8-pound, 14-ounce largemouth on June 18 to oust one-month record-holder Arley Minshall of Salem. Grasmick's new record outweighed Minshall's bass by 8 ounces.

Bateman, Jackson Spark Respectable '66 Astros

. . . ACCORDING TO HATTON

The Astros, who like the New York Mets were the butt of jokes for four years, have achieved a measure of respectability this season that has so far escaped their expansion twins.

Manager Grady Hatton, in his first year, has a ready explanation for the Astros' fourth-place standing. The only trouble is, he's not sure he knows the formula to keep them there.

"John Bateman and Sonny Jackson," Hatton said Tuesday, are the reasons for our surprising showing. "They have given us the strength we needed up the middle to go with Joe Morgan and Jim Wynn."

They have teamed with Morgan, the National League All-Star second baseman, and center fielder Wynn to provide Houston with a big-league middle.

The pitching staff is younger, but so far has been dependable. Most surprising is Mike Cuellar, a 29-year-old journeyman whose major league career record was 6-9 before this season. He has a 6-0 mark now and set a Houston club strikeout record last week with 15 against St. Louis.

Dave Giusti, the former Syracuse University star, and 19-year-old Larry Dierker have been steady performers. Giusti went into Tuesday night's game with a 9-4 record and 2.94 earned run average.

With hot weather and doubleheaders coming up, this is the time of the year that Cinderella clubs usually start to fold. In Houston's case, the problem is more acute because Morgan has been sidelined by injury and Dierker is away for two weeks for Army reserve summer training.

The Astros, who won between 64 and 66 games in each of their four previous seasons, are almost three weeks ahead of their 1965 victory pace. Hatton thinks they just could hang in there.

"But it's going to be a struggle," he said. "We need help and we're not going to get it. We need some left-handed pitching and a right-handed hitting outfielder. We haven't been able to trade for them and we don't have anyone we can bring up. We're going to have to get a lot of breaks.

"At spring training, I didn't think this was a first-division club. On paper, I don't really think it is. But sometimes you get going and pick up momentum and then it's tougher to be stopped. Maybe we can keep up the momentum.

Dodgers Sign Georgia Prep Pitching Standout

Albany, Ga. (AP) — Dennis James, 18-year-old left-handed pitching ace for Albany High School, signed a professional baseball contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday.

James, who compiled a 22-4 won-lost record in four years of pitching for the high school team and a 16-3 record for the local American Legion team, was signed by Dodger scout Leon Hamilton for an undisclosed amount.

Optimists Rip Geneva, 20-0

The Lincolnites unleashed a 13-hit attack while Optimist hurler Joe Starita was holding Geneva to just one hit, a third-inning infield single by Steve Everts.

The Optimists batted around in each of the first three innings, scoring six, nine, and four runs, respectively.

Jim Campbell led the Optimist batsmen with a three-for-four effort while Dennis Beranek was two-for-three and knocked in three RBI's with the only extra-base hit of the game, a double in the third inning.

Terrell Wins Title Defense

. . . DECISIONS JONES

Houston, Tex. (AP) — Ernie Terrell successfully defended his World Boxing Association heavyweight championship against Doug Jones Tuesday night although losing two rounds for low blows. He won a unanimous 15-round decision in the second defense of his crown.

The 209½-pound Terrell used superior reach and height to keep Jones away, meanwhile using his left jab to slam his 22-pound lighter opponent around the ring on a half-dozen occasions. In the last few rounds Terrell resorted to much clinching and the crowd of 8,000 booed him lustily for it.

Judge Chris Jordan scored it 146-141 for Terrell under the 10-point must system. Judge Max Rush scored it 146-141 Terrell and referee Ernie Taylor, who twice took two points away from Terrell for low blows, had it 145-140.

Ironically it was Terrell's best round where he lost the first two points. This was in the second when Terrell drove Jones into a corner with a left jab and strong right to the body.

He hammered Jones across the ring into another corner with his two-handed attack, and then had him in Jones' corner belting away just before the bell. But during the round Terrell landed a low blow with his right.

Jones landed a looping left that opened a cut over Terrell's right eye in the sixth round while Jones bled from the nose slightly in the eighth. But neither was ever badly hurt and even in the second when Jones took the hammering, he came back to land a couple of tough lefts to the body before the bell.

A crowd of 9,346 paid $102,165, making it the largest gate in Texas boxing history. A turnout of 10,000 had been anticipated with a $130,000 gate. Terrell got 40% and Jones 25, thus the former receives $48,000 and Jones more than $25,000.

The fight also was on closed TV over 67 outlets with a potential of $500,000.

Terrell would get about $250,000 and Jones about $100,000 from both the gate and TV.

Terrell lost the 14th round for a low blow but the crowd realized it didn't make much difference since Terrell was so far ahead on points anyway.

Jones never landed a damaging blow all night. He just couldn't penetrate Terrell's long reach—82 inches to 77—and he couldn't escape the left jabs from the WBA champion that kept driving into Jones' face with monotonous regularity.

The Associated Press card had it Terrell 147-141 despite the four points Terrell lost for low blows.

Kauai King En Route To Farm

Trainer Henry Forrest made the announcement Tuesday.

Earlier there had been confusion as to whether Kauai King was being retired to stud.

Owner Michaed J. Ford of Omaha, Neb., said Monday the colt was, but Forrest said he didn't know anything about it. On Tuesday Forrest confirmed that Kauai King was going to Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Sagamore Farm, where the colt's sire, Native Dancer, is at stud.

Kauai King suffered a pulled suspensory ligament in his left front leg while finishing fifth Saturday in the Arlington Classic, won by Buckpasser in world record time of 1:32 3-5 for one mile.

Forrest said Tuesday, however, that the injury wasn't too serious, and that Kauai King could be back racing in two or three months if Ford had so wished.

Kauai King was syndicated for $2,520,000 two weeks ago, with each share worth $70,000.

Following Kauai King's race in the Arlington Classic, Ford said he was wiring all syndicate members that he would not hold them to the agreement. Only one syndicate member pulled out.

However, Ford voluntarily reduced the value of the shares to $60,000.

Bunning Blanks Mets On 2 Hits

. . . BASEBALL ROUNDUP

By Associated Press

Philadelphia pitcher Jim Bunning overcame a shaky start and pitched a two-hitter Tuesday night as the Phils beat the New York Mets, 1-0.

Loser Bob Friend also only gave up two hits, but one of them was a long home run over the wall in right center field by Bill White, his 13th homer of the year.

Bunning gave up three walks in the first inning, but emerged unscathed and didn't give up a hit till the fifth. Friend also went hitless through the first four innings.

Roberto Clemente and Jose Pagan drove in runs with singles in the fifth inning to boost Pittsburgh to a 4-3 win over Houston. Bob Veale won his ninth game of the season.

Sammy Ellis gave Los Angeles just five hits as he pitched Cincinnati to a 3-1 win over the Dodgers. It was the Reds' 10th victory in 11 games. Tommy Harper was the big hitter for Cincinnati with a homer and two singles.

Bob Bolin pitched a two-hitter to lead San Francisco to a 7-1 win over St. Louis. Bolin had a no-hitter till former teammate Orlando Cepeda hit a single with one out in the seventh. Willie Mays hit a two-run homer in the eighth, his 18th of the season.

Joe Torre drove in three runs with his 17th homer of the year and a single to give Atlanta a 4-2 win over Chicago. Except for Torre's hits, Cub pitcher Ken Holtzman allowed only a double by Hank Aaron, but those four hits were enough. Winning pitcher was reliever Clay Carroll.

Kansas City ended Baltimore's win streak at three games, beating the Orioles 4-3. Chuck Dobson, Ken Sanders and Jack Aker combined to limit Baltimore to six hits.

George Thomas and Mike Ryan homered in Boston's 5-3 triumph over New York, despite two home runs by Mickey Mantle. The Sox took advantage of five New York errors for three unearned runs and Jose Santiago picked up his seventh win.

Don Lock hit a three-run homer in the first inning to lead Washington to a 4-1 victory over Chicago. Mike McCormick won his fifth game of the season and helped himself with a home run of his own. Bill Skowron homered in the seventh for the White Sox' only run.

Willie Horton drove in five runs with two singles and a homer as the Detroit Tigers exploded for 20 hits and smashed California, 15-3.

The victory went to right-hander Earl Wilson, 7-6, who aided his own cause with two singles and a triple before retiring with a pulled leg muscle after the seventh inning.

Al Kaline and Norm Cash homered for the Tigers off loser Clyde Wright, 1-2, who was knocked out in the third inning when Detroit went ahead, 5-0. The homers were Kaline's 13th of the year and Cash's 12th.

City Youth Bowling Lauded

Bud Wilkinson, director of the nation's youth physical fitness program under President Kennedy and now head of the Lifetime Sports Foundation, praised Lincoln Recreation Superintendent Robert M. Dula for adopting the "100-Plus Youth Bowler Development Program" in this area.

Lincoln youngsters who have enrolled in the program will receive five weeks of summer bowling instruction at selected centers cooperating with the United States Bowling Development Institute.

Balls, shoes and other equipment are furnished to the youth during the special five-week program.

Record Bass Taken By Bow

Another gigantic largemouth bass has hit the beach by way of bow and arrow to add a new name to the record books, reports the Game Commission.

Archer Jerry Grasmick of Scottsbluff collected an 8-pound, 14-ounce largemouth on June 18 to oust one-month record-holder Arley Minshall of Salem. Grasmick's new record outweighed Minshall's bass by 8 ounces.

Santo May Not Be Recovered

. . . EACH TEAM REPRESENTED

New York (AP)—No more than one player from any team was named Tuesday to the starting infields for the All-Star baseball game in St. Louis, July 12. But an injury to third baseman Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs may result in two San Francisco infielders playing for the National League.

Santo was selected for the NL along with first baseman Willie McCovey of San Francisco, second baseman Joe Morgan of Houston and shortstop Leo Cardenas of Cincinnati.

The American League will open with rookie first baseman George Scott of Boston, second baseman Bobby Knoop of California, shortstop Dick McAuliffe of Detroit and third baseman Brooks Robinson of Baltimore.

Santo edged Jim Ray Hart of the Giants, 151 votes to 125. However, the Cubs' star suffered a fractured cheekbone when hit by a pitched ball in Sunday's game against the New York Mets and underwent surgery Monday.

Morgan is another doubtful starter. He suffered a broken knee cap last Saturday. Closest to the Astros' second baseman in the voting was Jim Lefebvre of Los Angeles.

Presumably substitution will be made if Santo and Morgan are unable to play. NL Manager Walt Alston of Los Angeles will have to ask. Sam Male of Minnesota is the AL manager.

The Orioles' Robinson was the leading vote-getter on both starting infields, collecting 257. He and McAuliffe were the only repeaters from last year's starters.

McCovey topped the National League with 214 votes. The starters were selected in balloting by players, managers and coaches in each league. No one was permitted to vote for a player on his own team. Due to varying numbers of players on the rosters when the voting was conducted, there were 294 ballots in the National League and 287 in the American.

The National League leads in the series with 18 victories, 17 defeats and one tie. The senior circuit has won the last three games and seven of the last eight.

The announcement of the voting by Commissioner William D. Eckert's office was a change from past procedure. In previous years, the entire starting line-up, except for pitchers, were released at the same time.

The names of the starting outfielders will be released Thursday and the catchers Sunday. The pitching staffs and the rest of the 25-man squads will be named later.

Bateman, Jackson Spark Respectable '66 Astros

. . . ACCORDING TO HATTON

The Astros, who like the New York Mets were the butt of jokes for four years, have achieved a measure of respectability this season that has so far escaped their expansion twins.

Manager Grady Hatton, in his first year, has a ready explanation for the Astros' fourth-place standing. The only trouble is, he's not sure he knows the formula to keep them there.

"John Bateman and Sonny Jackson," Hatton said Tuesday, are the reasons for our surprising showing. "They have given us the strength we needed up the middle to go with Joe Morgan and Jim Wynn."

They have teamed with Morgan, the National League All-Star second baseman, and center fielder Wynn to provide Houston with a big-league middle.

The pitching staff is younger, but so far has been dependable. Most surprising is Mike Cuellar, a 29-year-old journeyman whose major league career record was 6-9 before this season. He has a 6-0 mark now and set a Houston club strikeout record last week with 15 against St. Louis.

Dave Giusti, the former Syracuse University star, and 19-year-old Larry Dierker have been steady performers. Giusti went into Tuesday night's game with a 9-4 record and 2.94 earned run average.

With hot weather and doubleheaders coming up, this is the time of the year that Cinderella clubs usually start to fold. In Houston's case, the problem is more acute because Morgan has been sidelined by injury and Dierker is away for two weeks for Army reserve summer training.

The Astros, who won between 64 and 66 games in each of their four previous seasons, are almost three weeks ahead of their 1965 victory pace. Hatton thinks they just could hang in there.

"But it's going to be a struggle," he said. "We need help and we're not going to get it. We need some left-handed pitching and a right-handed hitting outfielder. We haven't been able to trade for them and we don't have anyone we can bring up. We're going to have to get a lot of breaks.

"At spring training, I didn't think this was a first-division club. On paper, I don't really think it is. But sometimes you get going and pick up momentum and then it's tougher to be stopped. Maybe we can keep up the momentum.

Dodgers Sign Georgia Prep Pitching Standout

Albany, Ga. (AP) — Dennis James, 18-year-old left-handed pitching ace for Albany High School, signed a professional baseball contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday.

James, who compiled a 22-4 won-lost record in four years of pitching for the high school team and a 16-3 record for the local American Legion team, was signed by Dodger scout Leon Hamilton for an undisclosed amount.

Optimists Rip Geneva, 20-0

The Lincolnites unleashed a 13-hit attack while Optimist hurler Joe Starita was holding Geneva to just one hit, a third-inning infield single by Steve Everts.

The Optimists batted around in each of the first three innings, scoring six, nine, and four runs, respectively.

Jim Campbell led the Optimist batsmen with a three-for-four effort while Dennis Beranek was two-for-three and knocked in three RBI's with the only extra-base hit of the game, a double in the third inning.

Terrell Wins Title Defense

. . . DECISIONS JONES

Houston, Tex. (AP) — Ernie Terrell successfully defended his World Boxing Association heavyweight championship against Doug Jones Tuesday night although losing two rounds for low blows. He won a unanimous 15-round decision in the second defense of his crown.

The 209½-pound Terrell used superior reach and height to keep Jones away, meanwhile using his left jab to slam his 22-pound lighter opponent around the ring on a half-dozen occasions. In the last few rounds Terrell resorted to much clinching and the crowd of 8,000 booed him lustily for it.

Judge Chris Jordan scored it 146-141 for Terrell under the 10-point must system. Judge Max Rush scored it 146-141 Terrell and referee Ernie Taylor, who twice took two points away from Terrell for low blows, had it 145-140.

Ironically it was Terrell's best round where he lost the first two points. This was in the second when Terrell drove Jones into a corner with a left jab and strong right to the body.

He hammered Jones across the ring into another corner with his two-handed attack, and then had him in Jones' corner belting away just before the bell. But during the round Terrell landed a low blow with his right.

Jones landed a looping left that opened a cut over Terrell's right eye in the sixth round while Jones bled from the nose slightly in the eighth. But neither was ever badly hurt and even in the second when Jones took the hammering, he came back to land a couple of tough lefts to the body before the bell.

A crowd of 9,346 paid $102,165, making it the largest gate in Texas boxing history. A turnout of 10,000 had been anticipated with a $130,000 gate. Terrell got 40% and Jones 25, thus the former receives $48,000 and Jones more than $25,000.

The fight also was on closed TV over 67 outlets with a potential of $500,000.

Terrell would get about $250,000 and Jones about $100,000 from both the gate and TV.

Terrell lost the 14th round for a low blow but the crowd realized it didn't make much difference since Terrell was so far ahead on points anyway.

Jones never landed a damaging blow all night. He just couldn't penetrate Terrell's long reach—82 inches to 77—and he couldn't escape the left jabs from the WBA champion that kept driving into Jones' face with monotonous regularity.

The Associated Press card had it Terrell 147-141 despite the four points Terrell lost for low blows.

Kauai King En Route To Farm

Trainer Henry Forrest made the announcement Tuesday.

Earlier there had been confusion as to whether Kauai King was being retired to stud.

Owner Michaed J. Ford of Omaha, Neb., said Monday the colt was, but Forrest said he didn't know anything about it. On Tuesday Forrest confirmed that Kauai King was going to Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Sagamore Farm, where the colt's sire, Native Dancer, is at stud.

Kauai King suffered a pulled suspensory ligament in his left front leg while finishing fifth Saturday in the Arlington Classic, won by Buckpasser in world record time of 1:32 3-5 for one mile.

Forrest said Tuesday, however, that the injury wasn't too serious, and that Kauai King could be back racing in two or three months if Ford had so wished.

Kauai King was syndicated for $2,520,000 two weeks ago, with each share worth $70,000.

Following Kauai King's race in the Arlington Classic, Ford said he was wiring all syndicate members that he would not hold them to the agreement. Only one syndicate member pulled out.

However, Ford voluntarily reduced the value of the shares to $60,000.

Simon Named Kansas Sports Information Head

Oklahoma City (AP) — Jay Simon resigned Tuesday as sports editor of the Daily Oklahoman and Oklahoma City Times to become sports information director at the University of Kansas.

Bob Dellinger, assistant sports editor, was appointed to succeed Simon. Ray Soldan, high school sports specialist, will succeed Dellinger as assistant sports editor.

Simon has been sports editor of the Oklahoman and Times for the past three years. He joined the staff in 1948. He is a 1940 graduate of the University of Kansas.

Ford To Bolster Fairgrounds Meet

Possibly the most famous name in racing at the current time will be represented at the Fairgrounds meeting which opens July 7 in Lincoln.

That would be Ford and in this case its B. H. Ford, the breeding and racing tycoon of Omaha and Valley who will have a stable in Lincoln for the 23-day meeting which closes August 7.

This Ford is the father of Mike Ford, owner of the fabulous three-year-old Kauai King. But the elder Mr. Ford is gaining national recognition for his breeding thoroughbred farm near Valley.

His current runners include Bart's Baby, Crown Chief, Shall Again, Lady Beth, Forbella, Twilight Gem and Honor Spirit. All are trained and some of them owned by C. W. Pierce.

How can we sell a 10¢ cigar for 6¢?

It's no secret. We make more cigars of one brand than anyone and spend only a fraction for advertising. Still, sometimes we wish we could spend more advertising this fine cigar value. But, we'd have to raise our price or cut our quality. Then, we might not sell as many. What do you think?

Ford To Bolster Fairgrounds Meet

Possibly the most famous name in racing at the current time will be represented at the Fairgrounds meeting which opens July 7 in Lincoln.

That would be Ford and in this case its B. H. Ford, the breeding and racing tycoon of Omaha and Valley who will have a stable in Lincoln for the 23-day meeting which closes August 7.

This Ford is the father of Mike Ford, owner of the fabulous three-year-old Kauai King. But the elder Mr. Ford is gaining national recognition for his breeding thoroughbred farm near Valley.

His current runners include Bart's Baby, Crown Chief, Shall Again, Lady Beth, Forbella, Twilight Gem and Honor Spirit. All are trained and some of them owned by C. W. Pierce.

How can we sell a 10¢ cigar for 6¢?

It's no secret. We make more cigars of one brand than anyone and spend only a fraction for advertising. Still, sometimes we wish we could spend more advertising this fine cigar value. But, we'd have to raise our price or cut our quality. Then, we might not sell as many. What do you think?

Tresh Would Exchange Golden Glove For Hits

. . . OFF TO WORST START

Tresh, who won the American League's Golden Glove award as the New York Yankees' left fielder last season, is beginning to feel at home at third base — his third position in five years in the majors. But his .224 batting average is keeping him restless.

"They made a left fielder of me three years ago," the former shortstop said Monday, "and it took some time to adjust. But I came along last year. Now I think I can make all the plays at third . . . But there's a fellow named Brooks Robinson in the league and I may have to forget about the Golden Glove."

Tresh made the move to third base easily — "I played there for a while in the minors" — but he got off to his worst start as a hitter and only recently has begun to deliver at the plate.

"I hit the ball real good through our last home stand," he said, "even though a lot of my best shots were caught. I think I'm beginning to come around."

In the last 10 games, Tresh has ripped 13 hits in 37 swings — a .351 pace that has lifted his over-all average 25 points.

"I'm not really too interested in statistics — like what I hit at the end of the season. What I'd like to do is hit .300 the rest of the way. If I do that, I know I'll help the club win ball games."

Tresh, 27, led the Yankees in virtually every offensive department last season, batting .274 with 26 home runs and 74 runs batted in. He also scored more runs, 94, had more hits, 168, and doubles, 29, than any other Yankee.

Tresh, a switch-hitter like Mickey Mantle, said his failure to hit from the right side this year has been the biggest problem.

"Like Mickey," he said, "I've always been a better right-hand hitter. I hit .300 right-handed three of my four years in the majors. But I've been about .140 right-handed this year and I'm striking out once every five times up that way."

Tresh said he sought out Wally Moses, the Yankee coach who is regarded as one of baseball's top batting instructors, for advice.

"I talked it over with Wally and took some extra batting practice while we were home and I've changed my approach at the plate," said Tresh. "It's nothing I could explain in a few words but I've changed, and it's helping me."

Promising Youngsters Brighten Raider Hopes

. . . DESPITE OPENING LOSSES

By KENT SAVERY
Star Sports Writer

Although the Lincoln Raiders have lost their first two games, the AA entry in the Women's City Softball League may well have a bright future with a host of promising young players on its roster.

Head coach of the unsponsored Raiders is Robert Hairl. Alton Key is assistant coach.

"I'd seen most of the kids play before," said Hairl, "And we got together to see what we could do in competition."

According to Key, most of the girls are in high school with their ages ranging from around 14 to 18 or 19.

The youthful club has an abundance of speed and a number of good hitters and fielders.

"Jean Anderson is our top hitter," says Hairl, "And she can play anywhere in the field."

Hairl says strong Raider positions are shortstop and third base where sisters Janice and Jackie Jones man the defenses. "They both hit well, too," adds the coach.

Opinion Depends On Side

Take, for instance, 23-year-old Woody Fryman, Pittsburgh's rookie lefthander, who shut out the Philadelphia Phillies Sunday on three hits for a 2-0 victory.

"He pitched a great game," said Pirate manager Harry Walker, who was thrown out in the third inning after an argument with the umpires.

"He didn't impress me too much," said Phils manager Gene Mauch. "Really, the only thing that impressed me was the score."

Fryman, who left his tobacco farm in Kentucky last year to play baseball, said "it was the best game of my career. My fast ball and overhand curve were really going in. And I had pretty good control."

"In fact," he added, "I always have pretty good control."

The statistics agree. He didn't walk a man in registering his fifth win in eight decisions, and struck out seven. In 68 innings this season he has walked only 10, while fanning 36.

Mauch said his own batters "should have tied into those pitches for a lot of runs."

Fryman is a native of Ewing, Ky., where his father and brother run the family tobacco farm. He resisted Pirate offers for several years because he was making more money on the land than he could in the field.

Last year, "Pushed by my father and brothers," he signed with Pittsburgh, pitched for Batavia in the New York-Penn league and Columbus in the International, finishing with a combined 3-4 record.

Walker said Fryman "is very serious about his work and is dedicated to baseball. You tell him what you want him to do, and he does it."

Three Veterans Sign Pacts With Pittsburgh

Signed by the National Football League club were linebacker Rod Breedlove, quarterback Tommy Wade and defensive end Ben McGee.

Dynan Resigns As Kansas Sports Information Director

. . . SUCCEEDED PIERCE IN 1965

Lawrence, Kan.—Phil Dynan, sports information director at the University of Kansas, has resigned his position. The announcement concerning Dynan's resignation was made Wednesday by Wade R. Stinson, K.U. athletic director. The resignation is to become effective July 31st.

Dynan succeeded the late Don Pierce in January of 1965 coming to Kansas from West Virginia Tech where he served as director of public relations and sports information. Prior to his assignment in West Virginia Dynan enjoyed a successful coaching and teaching tenure in California.

Concerning Dynan's resignation from the Jayhawk staff Stinson said, "Phil has accomplished a fine job for us and we are sorry to lose a man of his competence".

The K.U. athletic director added that Dynan came to his staff under difficult circumstances, "Phil moved in during the basketball season and did a remarkable task during the time he has been in Lawrence".

Dynan said that working for Kansas, a school he once attended, was an interesting and unique experience. "I have enjoyed working with the coaching staff at K.U. during the past year and a half and I'll always have a high regard for the athletes here", Dynan said. "I feel fortunate to have helped promote three All-American athletes in three different sports with Skahan (Bob), Wesley (Walt), and Ryun (Jim)", Dynan said.

Tresh Would Exchange Golden Glove For Hits

. . . OFF TO WORST START

Tresh, who won the American League's Golden Glove award as the New York Yankees' left fielder last season, is beginning to feel at home at third base — his third position in five years in the majors. But his .224 batting average is keeping him restless.

"They made a left fielder of me three years ago," the former shortstop said Monday, "and it took some time to adjust. But I came along last year. Now I think I can make all the plays at third . . . But there's a fellow named Brooks Robinson in the league and I may have to forget about the Golden Glove."

Tresh made the move to third base easily — "I played there for a while in the minors" — but he got off to his worst start as a hitter and only recently has begun to deliver at the plate.

"I hit the ball real good through our last home stand," he said, "even though a lot of my best shots were caught. I think I'm beginning to come around."

In the last 10 games, Tresh has ripped 13 hits in 37 swings — a .351 pace that has lifted his over-all average 25 points.

"I'm not really too interested in statistics — like what I hit at the end of the season. What I'd like to do is hit .300 the rest of the way. If I do that, I know I'll help the club win ball games."

Tresh, 27, led the Yankees in virtually every offensive department last season, batting .274 with 26 home runs and 74 runs batted in. He also scored more runs, 94, had more hits, 168, and doubles, 29, than any other Yankee.

Tresh, a switch-hitter like Mickey Mantle, said his failure to hit from the right side this year has been the biggest problem.

"Like Mickey," he said, "I've always been a better right-hand hitter. I hit .300 right-handed three of my four years in the majors. But I've been about .140 right-handed this year and I'm striking out once every five times up that way."

Tresh said he sought out Wally Moses, the Yankee coach who is regarded as one of baseball's top batting instructors, for advice.

"I talked it over with Wally and took some extra batting practice while we were home and I've changed my approach at the plate," said Tresh. "It's nothing I could explain in a few words but I've changed, and it's helping me."

Promising Youngsters Brighten Raider Hopes

. . . DESPITE OPENING LOSSES

By KENT SAVERY
Star Sports Writer

Although the Lincoln Raiders have lost their first two games, the AA entry in the Women's City Softball League may well have a bright future with a host of promising young players on its roster.

Head coach of the unsponsored Raiders is Robert Hairl. Alton Key is assistant coach.

"I'd seen most of the kids play before," said Hairl, "And we got together to see what we could do in competition."

According to Key, most of the girls are in high school with their ages ranging from around 14 to 18 or 19.

The youthful club has an abundance of speed and a number of good hitters and fielders.

Hairl says strong Raider positions are shortstop and third base where sisters Janice and Jackie Jones man the defenses. "They both hit well, too," adds the coach.

Key says Janice is also their best pitcher if they need her. Gloria Foster shares mound duties.

Opinion Depends On Side

Take, for instance, 23-year-old Woody Fryman, Pittsburgh's rookie lefthander, who shut out the Philadelphia Phillies Sunday on three hits for a 2-0 victory.

"He pitched a great game," said Pirate manager Harry Walker, who was thrown out in the third inning after an argument with the umpires.

"He didn't impress me too much," said Phils manager Gene Mauch. "Really, the only thing that impressed me was the score."

Fryman, who left his tobacco farm in Kentucky last year to play baseball, said "it was the best game of my career. My fast ball and overhand curve were really going in. And I had pretty good control."

"In fact," he added, "I always have pretty good control."

The statistics agree. He didn't walk a man in registering his fifth win in eight decisions, and struck out seven. In 68 innings this season he has walked only 10, while fanning 36.

Jesse Gonder, who caught Fryman for eight innings, said "I've seen him faster, but against the Phils, the ball was really moving."

Mauch said his own batters "should have tied into those pitches for a lot of runs."

Fryman is a native of Ewing, Ky., where his father and brother run the family tobacco farm. He resisted Pirate offers for several years because he was making more money on the land than he could in the field.

Last year, "Pushed by my father and brothers," he signed with Pittsburgh, pitched for Batavia in the New York-Penn league and Columbus in the International, finishing with a combined 3-4 record.

Walker said Fryman "is very serious about his work and is dedicated to baseball. You tell him what you want him to do, and he does it."

Three Veterans Sign Pacts With Pittsburgh

Signed by the National Football League club were linebacker Rod Breedlove, quarterback Tommy Wade and defensive end Ben McGee.

Dynan Resigns As Kansas Sports Information Director

. . . SUCCEEDED PIERCE IN 1965

Lawrence, Kan.—Phil Dynan, sports information director at the University of Kansas, has resigned his position. The announcement concerning Dynan's resignation was made Wednesday by Wade R. Stinson, K.U. athletic director. The resignation is to become effective July 31st.

Dynan succeeded the late Don Pierce in January of 1965 coming to Kansas from West Virginia Tech where he served as director of public relations and sports information. Prior to his assignment in West Virginia Dynan enjoyed a successful coaching and teaching tenure in California.

Concerning Dynan's resignation from the Jayhawk staff Stinson said, "Phil has accomplished a fine job for us and we are sorry to lose a man of his competence".

The K.U. athletic director added that Dynan came to his staff under difficult circumstances, "Phil moved in during the basketball season and did a remarkable task during the time he has been in Lawrence".

Dynan said that working for Kansas, a school he once attended, was an interesting and unique experience. "I have enjoyed working with the coaching staff at K.U. during the past year and a half and I'll always have a high regard for the athletes here", Dynan said. "I feel fortunate to have helped promote three All-American athletes in three different sports with Skahan (Bob), Wesley (Walt), and Ryun (Jim)", Dynan said.

Complete Study Planned Of State's Penal Needs

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Committee on Crime and Delinquency (NCCD) decided Tuesday to make a complete study to determine the state's needs for its state penal and correctional institutions and programs and recommending priorities.

State Institutions Director George Morris, committee chairman, said recommendations for a study plan and broadening the group's membership would be considered at an Aug. 9 meeting.

A subcommittee, headed by Charles Tenney, University of Nebraska law professor, was assigned the task of recommending a study plan for later consideration.

Specific Areas

Morris said the study would include such specific areas as the state parole system, possible needs for district-wide probational and correctional service, pre-release and post-release programs and furloughs.

Committee members include representatives of the departments of labor, institutions, welfare and justice, State Pardon Board, State Penal Complex, juvenile court and state parole system.

Committee action came after a meeting with Richard Vogelgesang, a staff member of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency, which is making a nationwide survey for the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration.

Vogelgesang said the study is searching for promising programs aimed at preventing a first offender from becoming an habitual criminal and ways the federal government may aid the states in meeting their needs.

Can't Finance

A look at Nebraska penal and correctional programs, he said, seems to indicate local law enforcement agencies are incapable of financing an entire program.

He suggested that while boys' and girls' institutions are not overcrowded in terms of capacity, the "treatment services may be limited."

Also pointed out was the "lack of minimum state standards" for the some 30 city and 93 county jails in the state.

Bill Ettinger, superintendent of the Kearney State Training School for Boys, said he believes that Nebraska should develop half-ways houses for inmates prior to release.

"I'm also in favor of an intermediate institution between the Boys' Training School and the Penal Complex," he said.

However. Don Kirkpatrick of the Department of Labor said Nebraska is proposing a $500,000 demonstration project for vocational training of the younger institutional inmates that "will do what the half-way houses in other states are attempting to do."

Fresh Approach

The Nebraska-inspired program, now awaiting approval of the U.S. Department of Labor, would begin a fresh approach to counseling in the institutions and would develop "individualized vocational training packages" for the inmates prior to and after release from the correctional institutions.

Kirkpatrick said $250,000 in available federal funds would be used for on-the-job and manpower training programs while $250,000 in new federal money would be used for administration' and counseling services in the 18-month demonstration project.

Penitentiary Warden Maurice Sigler said the proposed project was a "start in the right direction," but questioned whether it would go far enough.

Allan Pfeiffer One Of 50 Picked For Navy Cruises

Allan Pfeiffer of Nebraska City is one of more than 50 students from the central United States scheduled to participate in the 1966 Navy Science Cruiser Program July 12-19 and Aug. 2-9, it was announced Tuesday.

Glenn Reinsche of Cook was announced as the first alternate winner and Gerald Wirth of Nebraska City as the second alternate.

The winners will take their five-day Navy Science Cruise-Tour either at Newport, R.I., or San Diego, Calif.

Washington (AP) — Lois Jean Reynolds, 18, Omaha girl Scout, was co-chairman of a workshop at the first National Youth Conference on Natural Beauty and Conservation.

Sen. Stryker Doesn't Want New Session

State Sen. Harold Stryker said Tuesday night there was no reason for a special session of the Legislature to deal with Nebraska's power problems and that the financial operations of Platte, Loup and Consumers were too complex to be dealt with in such a session.

Stryker was the chief sponsor of the 1965 legislative bill calling for a merger of the three districts into a single grid system. The bill was recently ruled unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court and Stryker said then he might seek a special session.

The Rising City senator said he still thinks there should be a merger of the districts with a single board of directors and that such a step bring about lower consumer rates.

Tax Petitioners Must Take Exam

A special examination for accountants and others who wish to represent taxpayers in matters before the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to be given Sept. 26 and 27 was announced Tuesday by Richard P. Vinal, Omaha district director of the IRS.

Tax practitioners who are not certified public accountants, attorneys, or qualified former IRS employees, must establish their technical competence before they can represent their clients in tax matters before the revenue service. Vinal said.

He pointed out that technical and ethical standards for this right to practice are set by the Treasury Department.

Information concerning the examination and application forms may be obtained from the IRS office at 15th and Dodge, Omaha. An enrollment fee of $25 is required when the application is filed.

LBJ: Use Computers

Sorensen Victory Would Open Pipeline—Tiemann

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Republican gubernatorial nominee Norbert Tiemann said Tuesday night that "the same old pipeline would be opened up back to the White House" if Nebraskans elect his opponent, Lt. Gov. Philip Sorensen.

"The last thing we need in Nebraska is an executive who takes his orders from Washington," Tiemann told a Lincoln audience of GOP precinct and block workers.

The reason Gov. Frank Morrison criticized a recent news article suggesting that President Johnson may take an active part in his Senate campaign is "because he knows the endorsement of the Great Society is tantamount to the kiss of death," Tiemann declared.

"And he is exactly right."

Untenable Position

Tiemann said Morrison is in "the untenable position of having to embrace the President."

The President is coming to Nebraska this week "to give Morrison the endorsement," Tiemann said, and that support will extend down to the Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

"I hope and pray that the Kennedys and the Sorensens will also come to Nebraska to campaign this fall," Tiemann said.

The Wausa banker said the GOP "must become the aggressor" in Nebraska politics and ride its present momentum and unity to a sweep in the November general election.

Tiemann said he will "still retain the identity" of his own campaign organization in every county, although it will be instructed to "work very closely" with Republican county central committees.

Same People

In some instances, the same people populate both groups, he noted.

The "thousands of brand new workers" who have become active in his own organization will "infuse new blood" into the Republican Party, he said. "But we will still need the older and wiser heads," he pointed out.

Sen. Thruston Morton of Kentucky will address the $10-a-plate fund-raising supper for GOP congressional nominee Robert Denney and county candidates in the First Congressional District, it was revealed.

Plans for the chuck wagon supper at Pershing Auditorium Sept. 14 had been outlined Monday night at the initial Republican workers meeting.

Complete Study Planned Of State's Penal Needs

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

The Nebraska Committee on Crime and Delinquency (NCCD) decided Tuesday to make a complete study to determine the state's needs for its state penal and correctional institutions and programs and recommending priorities.

State Institutions Director George Morris, committee chairman, said recommendations for a study plan and broadening the group's membership would be considered at an Aug. 9 meeting.

A subcommittee, headed by Charles Tenney, University of Nebraska law professor, was assigned the task of recommending a study plan for later consideration.

Specific Areas

Morris said the study would include such specific areas as the state parole system, possible needs for district-wide probational and correctional service, pre-release and post-release programs and furloughs.

Committee members include representatives of the departments of labor, institutions, welfare and justice, State Pardon Board, State Penal Complex, juvenile court and state parole system.

Committee action came after a meeting with Richard Vogelgesang, a staff member of the National Council on Crime and Delinquency, which is making a nationwide survey for the President's Commission on Law Enforcement and Administration.

Vogelgesang said the study is searching for promising programs aimed at preventing a first offender from becoming an habitual criminal and ways the federal government may aid the states in meeting their needs.

Can't Finance

A look at Nebraska penal and correctional programs, he said, seems to indicate local law enforcement agencies are incapable of financing an entire program.

He suggested that while boys' and girls' institutions are not overcrowded in terms of capacity, the "treatment services may be limited."

Also pointed out was the "lack of minimum state standards" for the some 30 city and 93 county jails in the state.

Bill Ettinger, superintendent of the Kearney State Training School for Boys, said he believes that Nebraska should develop half-ways houses for inmates prior to release.

"I'm also in favor of an intermediate institution between the Boys' Training School and the Penal Complex," he said.

However, Don Kirkpatrick of the Department of Labor said Nebraska is proposing a $500,000 demonstration project for vocational training of the younger institutional inmates that "will do what the half-way houses in other states are attempting to do."

Fresh Approach

The Nebraska-inspired program, now awaiting approval of the U.S. Department of Labor, would begin a fresh approach to counseling in the institutions and would develop "individualized vocational training packages" for the inmates prior to and after release from the correctional institutions.

Kirkpatrick said $250,000 in available federal funds would be used for on-the-job and manpower training programs while $250,000 in new federal money would be used for administration and counseling services in the 18-month demonstration project.

Penitentiary Warden Maurice Sigler said the proposed project was a "start in the right direction," but questioned whether it would go far enough.

Allan Pfeiffer of Nebraska City is one of more than 50 students from the central United States scheduled to participate in the 1966 Navy Science Cruiser Program July 12-19 and Aug. 2-9, it was announced Tuesday.

Glenn Reinsche of Cook was announced as the first alternate winner and Gerald Wirth of Nebraska City as the second alternate.

The winners will take their five-day Navy Science Cruise-Tour either at Newport, R.I., or San Diego, Calif.

Sen. Stryker Doesn't Want New Session

State Sen. Harold Stryker said Tuesday night there was no reason for a special session of the Legislature to deal with Nebraska's power problems and that the financial operations of Platte, Loup and Consumers were too complex to be dealt with in such a session.

Stryker was the chief sponsor of the 1965 legislative bill calling for a merger of the three districts into a single grid system. The bill was recently ruled unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court and Stryker said then he might seek a special session.

The Rising City senator said he still thinks there should be a merger of the districts with a single board of directors and that such a step bring about lower consumer rates.

Tax Petitioners Must Take Exam

A special examination for accountants and others who wish to represent taxpayers in matters before the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to be given Sept. 26 and 27 was announced Tuesday by Richard P. Vinal, Omaha district director of the IRS.

Tax practitioners who are not certified public accountants, attorneys, or qualified former IRS employees, must establish their technical competence before they can represent their clients in tax matters before the revenue service, Vinal said.

He pointed out that technical and ethical standards for this right to practice are set by the Treasury Department.

Information concerning the examination and application forms may be obtained from the IRS office at 15th and Dodge, Omaha. An enrollment fee of $25 is required when the application is filed.

Sorensen Victory Would Open Pipeline—Tiemann

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Republican gubernatorial nominee Norbert Tiemann said Tuesday night that "the same old pipeline would be opened up back to the White House" if Nebraskans elect his opponent, Lt. Gov. Philip Sorensen.

"The last thing we need in Nebraska is an executive who takes his orders from Washington," Tiemann told a Lincoln audience of GOP precinct and block workers.

The reason Gov. Frank Morrison criticized a recent news article suggesting that President Johnson may take an active part in his Senate campaign is "because he knows the endorsement of the Great Society is tantamount to the kiss of death," Tiemann declared.

"And he is exactly right."

Untenable Position

Tiemann said Morrison is in "the untenable position of having to embrace the President."

The President is coming to Nebraska this week "to give Morrison the endorsement," Tiemann said, and that support will extend down to the Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

"I hope and pray that the Kennedys and the Sorensens will also come to Nebraska to campaign this fall," Tiemann said.

The Wausa banker said the GOP "must become the aggressor" in Nebraska politics and ride its present momentum and unity to a sweep in the November general election.

Tiemann said he will "still retain the identity" of his own campaign organization in every county, although it will be instructed to "work very closely" with Republican county central committees.

Same People

In some instances, the same people populate both groups, he noted.

The "thousands of brand new workers" who have become active in his own organization will "infuse new blood" into the Republican Party, he said. "But we will still need the older and wiser heads," he pointed out.

Sen. Thruston Morton of Kentucky will address the $10-a-plate fund-raising supper for GOP congressional nominee Robert Denney and county candidates in the First Congressional District, it was revealed.

Plans for the chuck wagon supper at Pershing Auditorium Sept. 14 had been outlined Monday night at the initial Republican workers meeting.

Sens. Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska will join Tiemann and Denney on the supper program. Lloyd J. Marti will serve as general chairman, and Lincoln City Councilman John Mason will be ticket chairman for the event.

The last of three Republican workers sessions for Lancaster County will be held at Gateway Auditorium Wednesday night and will feature an address by County Sheriff Merle Karnopp.

Decline Is Sharp In Stock Market

New York (AP)—For the second consecutive day the stock market Tuesday sank to a sharp loss. Trading was moderate.

Brokers blamed apprehension over tightening credit and rising interest rates for the erosion of prices.

Some analysts said indications were that the market was headed for a test of its May lows but said low volume on declines was a heartening factor.

Some key issues suffered losses ranging up to 5 points and dragged the averages down. Others which had been weak in early trading were able to pare their losses and in some instances turn them into small gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 8.07 to 880.90, just about equal to its loss Monday. The Associated Press 60-stock average declined 2.1 to 317.2 with industrials off 4.5, rails off .7 and utilities up 1.

Volume climbed to 6.28 million shares from 5.33 million Monday.

Of the 15 most-active stocks, eight advanced and seven declined.

Sperry Rand, up 1.2 at 26¼ on 197,100 shares, was most active.

Airlines, which had been weak Monday, staged a comeback. Drugs also were strong. Motors eased and aircrafts whittled some early losses.

Prices declined on the American Stock Exchange and its stock index dipped $00.07 to $15.54. Volume rose to 1.95 million from 1.8 million Monday.

Corporate bonds were mostly unchanged and governments were sharply lower.

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Trend To Substitute Clerks For Executives Deplorable

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

Rukeyser

Despite the proliferation of university courses for training in banking and management, there is a regrettable counter trend in these days of traffic congestion from the population explosion to substitute clerks in banks for executives capable of exercizing independent judgement.

When I first entered Wall Street, an officer of the largest trust company remarked that his institution would not accept deposit accounts from blue sky stock vendors. At first blush, I thought this strange since the depositor trusts the bank with his funds, not vice versa. But the experienced banker explained that his institution didn't think it was in its long term interest to associate with questionable characters. For one thing, the bank didn't want the swindler to fool suckers by inducing them to assume that the fact he had an account in the bank indicated that the institition thought well of him.

Contemporary Trend

On the contemporary scene, there is a shortsighted tendency in some banking quarters to substitute formulae for thinking. For example, a chain banking system in a New York suburban area advertises to induce homeowners to make five-year home improvement loans. So far so good.

But here are the requirements to be eligible as a borrower:

"1. Between 25 and 60 years old.

"2. Living in area for two years.

"3. Employed by the same firm for two years.

"4. And your mortgage payments, including taxes, are approximately one week's salary."

Should Be Flexible

Of course, the banker should discriminate. But he should be flexible in analysing the credit-worthiness of applicants. He should indeed have criteria in mind, but it is a sign of weakness to broadcast that he is so incapable of exercising judgment that an exceptional man of 24 or a productive personality of 62 is ineligible.

Likewise, it is provincial and narrow minded to insist that the borrower shall have lived in the area for at least two years. Nowadays the major corporations frequently move executives around the country, and it is simple through the network of the National Association of Credit Men, through voluntary agencies such as Dun & Bradstreet's, and through correspondent banks to check the reliability and integrity of those who have recently migrated from another city. The personality who changed employers within two years is not per se a poor risk. On the contrary, it may well be that because of outstanding excellence there had been competitive bidding for his services.

While point 4, indicating that carrying charges on a home should not exceed a fourth of one's salary may be a useful rule of thumb, it must be interpreted in light of an individual's circumstances. One fourth may be excessive for a family man with 7 children, and the fraction of course has an altogether different significance for a newly married couple. Likewise, some families have other resources which contribute to spendable income.

A great authority on banking, H. Parker Willis, first secretary of the Federal Reserve Board, professor of banking at Columbia University, and one-time editor of the New York Journal of Commerce, used to define credit as a recognition of value. Such appraisal of value requires human insight and understanding. When rigid specifications are substituted for human judgment, banking becomes a clerk's chore— not a profession for men of profound human understanding.

Make no mistake about the usefulness of properly managed financial institutions. They are potential tools which help every man to fulfill his ambition to become financially independent. Bank and trust companies provide valuable facilities, but the productive functions cannot be relegated to machines or clerks. The knowledgeable banker shows discrimination and knows whom to trust.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries with stamped self-addressed envelope concerning their financial problems in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Company Invents No-Stick Caramel

Plainfield, N.J. (AP) — Caramels don't have to stick to your teeth like glue, say researchers for National Starch and Chemical Corporation.

The company has produced a food starch which when added to a caramel recipe allows candy makers to control the texture and bite of their confections without altering flavor. Result: tasty caramels that are easy to chew.

Grain Market Hit By Profit Cashing

Chicago (AP)—Profit cashing drove the grain futures market deep into losses Tuesday, the first general broad setback in several days.

Wheat, the only loser Monday, gave up about 5 cents more Tuesday on all contracts. Soybeans slipped about 5 cents net at worst and rye did the same. Corn eased more than a cent on old crop months and more than 2 cents on the new.

Trade in soybeans was described as very active as prices swung rapidly over a range of 9 to 12 cents a bushel.

At the close, wheat was 4 to 5 cents a bushel lower, July $1.79⅝-¼; corn 1⅛-2⅛ lower, July $1.33⅛-33; oats ⅛-⅞ lower, July 73⅛ cents; rye 3⅛ to 3 cents lower, July $1.27-27⅛; soybeans ⅝ to 4⅝ lower, July $3.64-63.

Decline Is Sharp In Stock Market

New York (AP)—For the second consecutive day the stock market Tuesday sank to a sharp loss. Trading was moderate.

Brokers blamed apprehension over tightening credit and rising interest rates for the erosion of prices.

Some analysts said indications were that the market was headed for a test of its May lows but said low volume on declines was a heartening factor.

Some key issues suffered losses ranging up to 5 points and dragged the averages down. Others which had been weak in early trading were able to pare their losses and in some instances turn them into small gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 8.07 to 880.90, just about equal to its loss Monday. The Associated Press 60-stock average declined 2.1 to 317.2 with industrials off 4.5, rails off .7 and utilities up 1.

Of 1,405 issues traded, 773 fell and 382 rose. New 1966 lows outnumbered new highs 103 to 9.

Volume climbed to 6.28 million shares from 5.35 million Monday.

Of the 15 most-active stocks, eight advanced and seven declined.

Sperry Rand, up 1.2 at 26¼ on 197,100 shares, was most active.

Airlines, which had been weak Monday, staged a comeback. Drugs also were strong. Motors eased and aircrafts whittled some early losses.

Prices declined on the American Stock Exchange and its stock index dipped $00.07 to $15.54. Volume rose to 1.95 million from 1.8 million Monday.

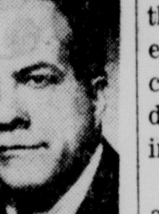
EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Trend To Substitute Clerks For Executives Deplorable

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

Despite the proliferation of university courses for training in banking and management, there is a regrettable counter trend in these days of traffic congestion from the population explosion to substitute clerks in banks for executives capable of exercizing independent judgement.



Rukeyser

The original J. Pierpont Morgan uttered an eternal truth when he observed that the best collateral for a loan is character.

When I first entered Wall Street, an officer of the largest trust company remarked that his institution would not accept deposit accounts from blue sky stock vendors. At first blush, I thought this strange since the depositor trusts the bank with his funds, not vice versa. But the experienced banker explained that his institution didn't think it was in its long term interest to associate with questionable characters. For one thing, the bank didn't want the swindler to fool suckers by inducing them to assume that the fact he had an account in the bank indicated that the institition thought well of him.

Contemporary Trend

On the contemporary scene, there is a shortsighted tendency in some banking quarters to substitute formulae for thinking. For example, a chain banking system in a New York suburban area advertises to induce homeowners to make five-year home improvement loans. So far so good.

But here are the requirements to be eligible as a borrower:

"1. Between 25 and 60 years old.

"2. Living in area for two years.

"3. Employed by the same firm for two years.

Should Be Flexible

Of course, the banker should discriminate. But he should be flexible in analysing the credit-worthiness of applicants. He should indeed have criteria in mind, but it is a sign of weakness to broadcast that he is so incapable of exercising judgment that an exceptional man of 24 or a productive personality of 62 is ineligible.

Likewise, it is provincial and narrow minded to insist that the borrower shall have lived in the area for at least two years. Nowadays the major corporations frequently move executives around the country, and it is simple through the network of the National Association of Credit Men, through voluntary agencies such as Dun & Bradstreet's, and through correspondent banks to check the reliability and integrity of those who have recently migrated from another city. The personality who changed employers within two years is not per se a poor risk. On the contrary, it may well be that because of outstanding excellence there had been competitive bidding for his services.

While point 4, indicating that carrying charges on a home should not exceed a fourth of one's salary may be a useful rule of thumb, it must be interpreted in light of an individual's circumstances. One fourth may be excessive for a family man with 7 children, and the fraction of course has an altogether different significance for a newly married couple. Likewise, some families have other resources which contribute to spendable income.

A great authority on banking, H. Parker Willis, first secretary of the Federal Reserve Board, professor of banking at Columbia University, and one-time editor of the New York Journal of Commerce, used to define credit as a recognition of value. Such appraisal of value requires human insight and understanding. When rigid specifications are substituted for human judgment, banking becomes a clerk's chore— not a profession for men of profound human understanding.

Make no mistake about the usefulness of properly managed financial institutions. They are potential tools which help every man to fulfill his ambition to become financially independent. Bank and trust companies provide valuable facilities, but the productive functions cannot be relegated to machines or clerks. The knowledgeable banker shows discrimination and knows whom to trust.

(Mr. Rukeyser will be pleased to receive inquiries with stamped self-addressed envelope concerning their financial problems in care of The Lincoln Star. Questions of general interest will be answered in the column. Others, to the extent time permits, will be handled by mail.)

Company Invents No-Stick Caramel

Plainfield, N.J. (AP) — Caramels don't have to stick to your teeth like glue, say researchers for National Starch and Chemical Corporation.

The company has produced a food starch which when added to a caramel recipe allows candy makers to control the texture and bite of their confections without altering flavor. Result: tasty caramels that are easy to chew.

Peterson Will Retire July 1; Writing, Lecturing On Menu

Hastings (AP) — Val Peterson, three-time Nebraska governor and former ambassador to Denmark disclosed Tuesday that he has asked for and been granted an early retirement from the J. M. McDonald Company effective July 1.

Peterson

Peterson has been a director of the firm since 1956 and vice chairman of its board since 1961.

He said he plans to enjoy a period of rest and relaxation and then devote himself to lecturing and writing, which takes him all over the country, and to other businesses with which he is connected. He said he has been outlining three books he has in mind.

Peterson, formerly a teacher of political science and history and a school administrator, said he also is giving some thought to education.

Peterson is chairman of the board of directors of Life Investors of Nebraska, Inc., and director of Investors Life Insurance Co., of Nebraska, and a director of the First National Bank of Hastings.

After serving as ambassador to Denmark in the Eisenhower Administration, he returned to Nebraska and joined the McDonld Company. Since then he has served as a member of the University of Nebraska Board of Regents and was a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor in the May, 1966, primary election.

Hastings Lad, Norfolk Man Crash Victims

By Associated Press

Two more names were added to the Nebraska highway death toll Tuesday and there was a possiblity that a third name would be added.

A 72-year-old rural Dawson man, Henry Bruhn, was found dead in his overturned car at the bottom of a creek bed along Highway 8 west of Salem Monday night, but Richardson County authorities withheld his name from the automobile fatality list pending a determination of whether or not his death resulted from natural causes rather than injury.

Latest auto fatality reported was 9-year-old Harry Lee Hoff of Hastings, who died during the night in Omaha Methodist Hospital, of injuries suffered last Friday in an auto-pedestrian accident in Hastings.

Wayne C. Spencer, 22, Norfolk, was killed early Tuesday in a car truck crash on U.S. 77, about 1½ miles north of Fremont. The Nebraska Safety Patrol said Spencer's car struck the rear of a truck driven by Edgar C. Holmgrain of Omaha. The truck driver was unhurt.

Uniform Sunday Tavern Closing Policy Is Urged

Omaha (AP) — Chief Deputy Sheriff Jack Knudtson told the Douglas County board Tuesday all taverns in rural Douglas County should be prohibited from selling beer before noon on Sunday.

"I would personally like to see us use the same hours as the city of Omaha closing until noon Sundays." Knudtson said. Any policy, he declared, should be uniform "because it would aid law enforcement."

State Law permits county boards to regulate the Sunday hours of taverns. A 1955 county ordinance states that taverns in rural areas must follow the policies of the nearest municipality, but Knudtson said that policy is hard to regulate.

Men, Machines Adequate For McCook Harvest

The supply of men and machines for the custom wheat harvest is presently adequate in the McCook area, the state Labor Department's Division of Employment reported Tuesday.

General cutting is expected by mid-week in Furnas, Red Willow and Hitchcock Counties, the agency said.

In Hayes County, cutting is expected to be general by Friday; in Dundy and Gosper Counties, by Saturday, and in Chase County, around July 4 or 5.

Cutting is expected in Perkins and Keith Counties shortly after the first of July, and sample cutting in eastern and southern Deuel County is expected by the weekend.

Meanwhile, wheat in the Ayr area of Adams County suffered some hail damage during Monday's storm. A strip about 2½ miles long and one mile wide, some five miles south of Ayr suffered 80 to 90% crop damage.

Observers said the rains probably would set the wheat harvest back in Adams County.

Physicians Will Save Boy's Sight; Injured In Blast

Ainsworth (AP)—A 14-year-old Ainsworth boy suffered an eye injury in a fireworks accident, but physicians reported he will not lose the sight of the eye.

The boy was Donnie Shiffermiller, son of Dr. and Mrs. F. H. Shiffermiller. The doctor's office said the boy was playing with some type of fireworks which he placed in a bottle: the bottle was shattered by the explosion and his left eye was badly cut.

Dr. and Mrs. Shiffermiller flew him to Omaha to a specialist but they reported Tuesday the boy's eyesight will be saved.

Research, Teaching Program Funds Interest Dean Frolik

Washington (AP) — Dean Elvin F. Frolik of the University of Nebraska School of Agriculture said Tuesday he is interested in appropriations Congress will provide for research and teaching programs.

Frolik said at a weekly Nebraska congressional delegation breakfast that the House has approved some activities in this field but the Senate has not yet acted. He is confident, he added, that the Senate will go along with the House or provide "something better."

The state's congressional delegation, he noted, supports funds for research and other programs in the agriculture department's money bill for the year beginning July 1.

Among other things, Frolik said, he is interested in development of the Clay Center, Neb., meat animal research center. The budget recommended $1.3 million for construction at the center during the next fiscal year, he said. The House provided $3.4 million for the center.

He also is interested, he said, in a proposed new forestry laboratory for Lincoln.

Others from Lincoln attending the breakfast included Jack Hart, editorial writer for the Lincoln Journal, and Mrs. Hart.

A carpenter, Bartholomew said the skate trip is a lifelong ambition. He has been training for it for a year and a half. He left Spokane Monday.

New Industry Locating At Hastings NAD

Hastings (UPI) — The City Council of Hastings has authorized Mayor Herbert Hodge to sign a lease with Leverage Utilities, Inc., a small hand tool manufacturer, for a new industry in Hastings.

Leverage will take over 11 acres of the Hastings Naval Ammunition Depot grounds acquired by Hastings several months ago and three buildings on the NAD grounds near Glenvil.

Dr. Earl Baldwin of Elkhorn, president of the corporation, said work will begin at the site about July 1. He anticipates employment of about 20 people at the outset and about 50 by the end of the year with an annual payroll of $72,000.

A Small Business Administration loan has been obtained to cover about 80% of the financing and the Hastings Corporation will supply the other 20%. Dr. Baldwin said the firm has about $200,000 in working capital with which to begin operations.

$5,000 Will Aid Library Holdings For Peru State

Peru (UPI) — Peru State College has been awarded a grant of $5,000 by the federal government for library improvements, Dr. Darrell Winninger, coordinator of federal funds and head of Peru State's Division of Education said.

The grant will allow Peru State to bolster library holdings which now include more than 75,000 titles.

Acquisitions will be made in all areas of the college curriculum, the Peru State librarian said.

The grant was the second federal grant for Peru State in the last week. Earlier, Peru State received $4,954 in matching funds to be used to purchase equipment and materials to improve classroom instruction.

Council Bluffs, Iowa (UPI) —Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tyson and their 10 children were homeless Tuesday after a fire Monday night destroyed most of their rural Council Bluffs home.

Children, ranging from 15 months to 18 years, and their parents were being cared for by relatives here.

Peterson Will Retire July 1; Writing, Lecturing On Menu

Hastings (AP) — Val Peterson, three-time Nebraska governor and former ambassador to Denmark disclosed Tuesday that he has asked for and been granted an early retirement from the J. M. McDonald Company effective July 1.

Peterson

Peterson has been a director of the firm since 1956 and vice chairman of its board since 1961.

He said he plans to enjoy a period of rest and relaxation and then devote himself to lecturing and writing, which takes him all over the country, and to other businesses with which he is connected. He said he has been outlining three books he has in mind.

Peterson, formerly a teacher of political science and history and a school administrator, said he also is giving some thought to education.

Peterson is chairman of the board of directors of Life Investors of Nebraska, Inc., and director of Investors Life Insurance Co., of Nebraska, and a director of the First National Bank of Hastings.

After serving as ambassador to Denmark in the Eisenhower Administration, he returned to Nebraska and joined the McDonld Company. Hastings Lad, Norfolk Man Crash Victims

By Associated Press

Two more names were added to the Nebraska highway death toll Tuesday and there was a possiblity that a third name would be added.

A 72-year-old rural Dawson man, Henry Bruhn, was found dead in his overturned car at the bottom of a creek bed along Highway 8 west of Salem Monday night, but Richardson County authorities withheld his name from the automobile fatality list pending a determination of whether or not his death resulted from natural causes rather than injury.

Latest auto fatality reported was 9-year-old Harry Lee Hoff of Hastings, who died during the night in Omaha Methodist Hospital, of injuries suffered last Friday in an auto-pedestrian accident in Hastings.

Wayne C. Spencer, 22, Norfolk, was killed early Tuesday in a car truck crash on U.S. 77, about 1½ miles north of Fremont. The Nebraska Safety Patrol said Spencer's car struck the rear of a truck driven by Edgar C. Holmgrain of Omaha. The truck driver was unhurt.

Uniform Sunday Tavern Closing Policy Is Urged

Omaha (AP) — Chief Deputy Sheriff Jack Knudtson told the Douglas County board Tuesday all taverns in rural Douglas County should be prohibited from selling beer before noon on Sunday.

"I would personally like to see us use the same hours as the city of Omaha closing until noon Sundays," Knudtson said. Any policy, he declared, should be uniform "because it would aid law enforcement."

State Law permits county boards to regulate the Sunday hours of taverns. A 1955 county ordinance states that taverns in rural areas must follow the policies of the nearest municipality, but Knudtson said that policy is hard to regulate.

Men, Machines Adequate For McCook Harvest

The supply of men and machines for the custom wheat harvest is presently adequate in the McCook area, the state Labor Department's Division of Employment reported Tuesday.

General cutting is expected by mid-week in Furnas, Red Willow and Hitchcock Counties, the agency said.

In Hayes County, cutting is expected to be general by Friday; in Dundy and Gosper Counties, by Saturday, and in Chase County, around July 4 or 5.

Cutting is expected in Perkins and Keith Counties shortly after the first of July, and sample cutting in eastern and southern Deuel County is expected by the weekend.

Meanwhile, wheat in the Ayr area of Adams County suffered some hail damage during Monday's storm. A strip about 2½ miles long and one mile wide, some five miles south of Ayr suffered 80 to 90% crop damage.

Observers said the rains probably would set the wheat harvest back in Adams County.

Research, Teaching Program Funds Interest Dean Frolik

Washington (AP) — Dean Elvin F. Frolik of the University of Nebraska School of Agriculture said Tuesday he is interested in appropriations Congress will provide for research and teaching programs.

Frolik said at a weekly Nebraska congressional delegation breakfast that the House has approved some activities in this field but the Senate has not yet acted. He is confident, he added, that the Senate will go along with the House or provide "something better."

The state's congressional delegation, he noted, supports funds for research and other programs in the agriculture department's money bill for the year beginning July 1.

Among other things, Frolik said, he is interested in development of the Clay Center, Neb., meat animal research center. The budget recommended $1.3 million for construction at the center during the next fiscal year, he said. The House provided $3.4 million for the center.

He also is interested, he said, in a proposed new forestry laboratory for Lincoln.

New Industry Locating At Hastings NAD

Hastings (AP) — The Cty Council of Hastings has authorized Mayor Herbert Hodge to sign a lease with Leverage Utilities, Inc., a small hand tool manufacturer, for a new industry in Hastings.

Leverage will take over 11 acres of the Hastings Naval Ammunition Depot grounds acquired by Hastings several months ago and three buildings on the NAD grounds near Glenvil.

Dr. Earl Baldwin of Elkhorn, president of the corporation, said work will begin at the site about July 1. He anticipates employment of about 20 people at the outset and about 50 by the end of the year with an annual payroll of $72,000.

A Small Business Administration loan has been obtained to cover about 80% of the financing and the Hastings Corporation will supply the other 20%. Dr. Baldwin said the firm has about $200,000 in working capital with which to begin operations.

Peru (UPI) — Peru State College has been awarded a grant of $5,000 by the federal government for library improvements, Dr. Darrell Winninger, coordinator of federal funds and head of Peru State's Division of Education said.

The grant will allow Peru State to bolster library holdings which now include more than 75,000 titles.

Acquisitions will be made in all areas of the college curriculum, the Peru State librarian said.

The grant was the second federal grant for Peru State in the last week. Earlier, Peru State received $4,954 in matching funds to be used to purchase equipment and materials to improve classroom instruction.

POSTCARD

Summery days around here. Science says this morning that the world's ice caps are melting. When that happens, much of the U.S. will be underwater.

I expect we will be the first to go.

"It was so cold in Kansas that winter the well froze," said my grandfather. "We had to take a length of cottonwood tree—18 feet long—and punch a hole in the ice to get water.

"We had icewater all summer." he said. He said it seriously. I believed him.

Up early this morning and felt remarkably hearty. So hearty I beat on my chest.

Immediately felt a sharp pain and was filled with gloom. Mentally drew up my will and prepared for the worst. Made a tender examination. Found a pin left by the laundry.

Grandpa said most illness came from not eating a hearty breakfast. Himself, he took bacon and eggs and, if handy, a slice of mince pie.

"Did I tell you how Uncle Newt cured his horse?" he asked me. "Well, sir, he heard the way to do it was to blow salt down his throat. Uncle Newt filled his mouth with salt. But the horse blew first."

Grandpa went down to Kansas to homestead in the late Seventies. It was the year Dull Knife and his band of Cheyennes were headed home to Montana, chased by most of the U.S. Army.

The Cheyennes had been relocated down in Indian Territory after the Custer massacre. They decided to go home.

Chief Dull Knife tried to keep them in line. But up in Kansas they shot up a bunch of settlers.

"Everybody stuck pretty close together," said grandpa. "We never saw an Indian, but one fellow accidentally shot himself in the foot."

I wonder whatever happened to porch swings? They hung on porches of white, frame houses that stood alongside leafy catalpa trees in quiet Midwest towns.

In the summer evenings, you could hear their chains creaking all along the block. Smell burning Chinese punk—to keep off mosquitoes. And hear ice tinkling in pitchers of lemonade.

They were prime courting grounds. Small boys hearing the giggling and whispering would put on an act in the street. We pretended to faint and said in falsetto: "My dear, may I kiss your hand? Whoops!"

Mothers (with marriageable daughters in the swing) would come out and say to us: "Come in here. It's way past bedtime."

Nowadays we have instant lemonade. Then we had instant boys. "Come in here this instant! And don't let the screen door slam. You'll wake up the house."

On the hot summer nights there was a smell of thunder in the air. Grandma said she could tell when it was going to storm. She could feel it in her big toe.

When grandpa talked about Kansas in the early days, she said: "Wild horses couldn't drag me back."

It was bleak country of long, yellow plains. Plows digging as far as the horizon and women's work was never done, she said. Summer heat and twisting, black tornadoes and waiting for rain before the wheat shriveled up.

Grandpa said: "We broke the ice in that well every morning for ourselves and the stock. We were pretty worried for that 18 foot cottonwood was the longest pole we could get."

He said they just had a handhold left when a chinook blew down and warmed the water and saved their lives.
